'L' SUPERINTENDENTS BEAT WARRANTS IN RACE TO GRAND JURY

The Boston Elevated Railway Company saved ten of its superintendents, inspectors and other minor officials from being arrested on capias warrants today by rushing them to the Suffolk Courthouse in automobiles so they could appear before the Grand Jury before the police could serve the warrants on them.

These ten men had been summoned to testify before the Grand Jury's special session to investigate alleged intimidation and perjury by Elevated officials in connection with the Elevated strike.

District Attorney Pelletier refused to allow the "L" men to go before the Grand Jury until they had appeared before Judge Pierce and explained why they had originally disobeyed the summonses to appear. The men appeared before the court, were purged of contempt and allowed to go before the Grand Jury.

PELLETIER TIRED OF WAITING.

The ten were leisurely enough at first. The Grand Jury assembled at 9:30 and none of the men had appeared by 10:15. District Attorney Pelletier, tired of waiting, got capiases from Judge Pierce. The capiases were given to four police officers to serve immediately.

About this time some friend informed the Elevated that the District Attorney's office and the Suffolk Superior Court was taking radical steps—in short, that the deliquent witnesses would be "pinched" and jugged before the Grand Jury forthwith.

There was a grand scurrying in the Elevated offices. Automobiles were ordered. The autos were sent out for the various ten men for whom police were at that very time searching.

The Elevated "beat the police to it," as it were. With their speedy autos they whirled one of the witnesses after another to the court house.

A Grand Scramble.

The scene was not unlike a modern version of that grand scramble that took place in the celebrated poem: "Lochinvar."

When the gallant Young Lochinvar lifted the bride to his saddle and galloped away, the next line relates:

"There was racing and chasing in haste 'mid the Netherby clan"

A few lines farther on the couplet appears:

"There was racing and chasing on Canobie lee,
But the last bride of Netherby ne'er did they see."

There wasn't any bride in this case, but

REVEAL SLAYERS' MURDER FEAST

NEW YORK, July 24.—The writ of habeas corpus sued out in favor of Louis Webber, a suspect in the Rosenthal murder case, was dismissed today by Justice Giegerich.

NEW YORK, July 24.—There was a murder breakfast at the Lafayette hotel just six hours after the assassination of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, in front of the Hotel Metropole in Forty-third street, at which the murder was discussed in full and plans made for the further safety of those concerned in it.

Among those present were "Jack" Rose, "Bridgy" Webber, Sam Paul and others. One of the actual executors of Herman was at this breakfast.

The men leisurely partook of a meal, consisting of cantaloupe, scrambled eggs, buttered toast and coffee. They sat at the table, cool only in baltimore. After the meal they had one drink and then dressed. Thereupon each went on his way.

They were waited on by Herman Stern, known as "Herman the waiter." Stern

FAIL TO SCALE MOUNT McKINLEY

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, July 24.—The latest attempt to scale Mount McKinley has failed. Professor Herchel C. Parker of Columbia University and Belmore Brown of Tacoma have arrived here with a report that their efforts to scale the highest peak on this continent had been thwarted. They made two attempts, one on the south peak and the other on the north. An altitude of 20,200 feet was reached on the south peak and 19,000 feet on the north peak. It had been earlier reported that Professor Parker and Mr. Brown had succeeded in scaling the peak.

Rich Residents Say Cape Dredgers Gay Drive Sleep Away from Buzzard's Bay

Oh, PLEASE go 'way and let us sleep,
You dredgers there make din so deep
That day or night we lose our rest,
Our bliss you blight—you're sure a pest—
So please go 'way an det us sleep,
—Buzzard's Bay Dredging Dirge.

Wealthy Boston, Brookline and Wellesley members of the Summer colony at Agawam Point on Buzzards Bay appeared with counsel before Judge Pierce in the Suffolk Superior Court today to ask that an injunction be issued restraining the Cape Cod Canal Construction Company and the Forest-Clark Dredging Company from keeping dredges at work day and night near their Summer homes.

The petitioners claimed the dredgers made "peculiar harsh and loud noises" which prevented them from getting any sleep at any time during the twenty-four hours of the day. During a talk with the complaining Buzzard's Bay colonists Judge Pierce declared that the building of the Cape Cod Canal might be a work of such public necessity that private rights must yield.

Those who appeared in court and signed the petition were Francis W. Hunnewell, Walter Hunnewell, Henry S. Hunnewell and William S. Patten of Wellesley, trustees under the will of Arthur H. Hunnewell; Jane H. Hunnewell of Wellesley, who has a handsome home at Agawam Point; Moses Williams of Brookline, who owns a large tract of the Agawam Point waterfront land; John L. Hall of Boston, James Warren of Cambridge and Charles F. Lyman of Dover.

Judge Pierce was told that the Forst-Clark Company was running its dredges every minute of the day and night, that the work should have been done last Fall or last Spring, and that it was likely to be kept up all Summer.

"If these conditions continue," the petition concluded, "many of the members of our families will suffer in health through lack of rest and sleep."

Judge Pierce would not grant an injunction today, but decided to grant the Cape Cod Canal Company and the dredging company until Monday to make specific answers to the complaints of the Agawam Point residents.

RECOVER BODY OF DROWNED SWIMMER

The body of Archie Williams was recovered today in Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield, by the police. Williams dived off a yacht for a swim, and the heavy wind drove the boat far from the drowning man. Williams was thirty-one years old and married. He was a poor swimmer, and in diving, it is believed he struck his head and was stunned.

MRS. McCORMICK IN A SANITARIUM

CHICAGO, July 24.—Mrs. Harold H. McCormick is in a sanitarium near New York city, according to a report which reached Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. McCormick, with their three children and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, mother of Mr. McCormick, were booked to sail for Europe several days ago, but Mrs. McCormick is said to have become suddenly ill.

BOY KILLED AND MAN INJURED AT CROSSING

WEBSTER, July 24.—Ten-year-old Frank Lavelski was instantly killed and Joseph Koskwski, thirty-five years old, a baker, was severely injured here today when a baker's wagon in which they were riding was struck by a New Haven train bound for Putnam, Ct. The wagon was dragged 150 feet.

POSTOFFICE BREAK.

A notice by telephone was received today by Chief Lehrman of the postoffice inspectors in New England that the postoffice at Pinkhile, was broken into last night. Property of little value was taken.

SAVES TARIFF BOARD.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—By a vote of 34 to 19 the Senate today agreed to the ordinary civil bill amendment appropriating $225,000 for the continuance of the tariff board.

ACCUSES ALMY IN WILL CASE

Ferdinand B. Almy, executor of the estate of the late Daniel Russell of Melrose, on the stand today at the hearing of the famous will case in the East Cambridge courthouse, was accused by Attorney William R. Scharton of having made an attempt to place William C. Russell, his co-executor of the estate, in an insane asylum.

Almy was grilled by Lawyer Scharton, who asked questions dealing with the administration of the estate, a half share in which is claimed by both Fresno Dan and Dakota Dan. Attorney Scharton charged that Almy exercised a control over William C. Russell, and moreover had taken Fresno Dan about in order to have him identified as the real Daniel Blake Russell.

"I shall show," declared Scharton, "that Almy tried to place William C. Russell in an insane asylum because he was unable to attend to his estate.

"I claim here in court that here was a conspiracy and a deep laid plot to defraud the rightful heir of his property."

Scharton's startling charges followed this question he fired at Almy:

"Did you or one time try to place William C. Russell in an insane asylum?"

Attorney Nason objected to the question.

This afternoon Fresno Dan was recalled to the stand by Attorney Nason for cross-examination.

LOSS OF MILLION IN WISCONSIN FLOODS

WAUSAU, Wis., July 24.—This city has been swept by a flood that caused a loss estimated at $1,000,000. Several persons are reported drowned. Two dams used to furnish the power supply for the Wausau Paper Mills, called largest in the world, went out and allowed the water in the reservoir they formed to sweep down on the city. The water followed the course of the Wisconsin River.

WIFE ATTEMPTS TO ENJOIN HUSBAND

Mrs. Ida J. Deering of Boston today petitioned the Superior Court for an injunction against her husband, Frank H. Deering, restraining him from trespassing on her premises at No. 334 Auburnsnare avenue, Newton. Mrs. Deering has been separated from her husband since last September. According to the wife's petition, her husband has been annoying a tenant of hers, Lester Perrine, to whom she has leased the Auburndale avenue house and garage. Judge Pierce issued an order of notice returnable tomorrow.

Bunker Hill Battle Mystery

Prescott's Sword Is Broken

Patriotic Societies Are Horrified and the Police Are Worried.

Who fought the last battle of Bunker Hill?

And who broke the blade off the bronze sword on the statue to Colonel Prescott, the Bunker Hill hero?

These two mysteries day bother the police and patriotic authorities.

The police are worried lest some one disturbed the peace at Bunker Hill and got away with it.

The patriotic societies are horrified at the idea of anybody breaking a piece of the Prescott sword.

According to a little girl's story in the police today, two little boys attacked General Prescott. One boy stood on the other's shoulders and the lad on top broke off the General's sword. Then the boys ran away, after throwing the sword in the grass.

A Bunker Hill woman telephoned City square police station that a fight was on at the Hill. A squad of police arrived in time to find nobody.

Later, the regular "cop" on the beat detected three small boys forbin sine in the act of running rapidly in the opposite direction. The cop came around by the other side of the big monument and found the business end of the Prescott sword on the ground, broken off from the hilt.

THE BROKEN SWORD.

The sword end is in the possession of George A. Lee, assistant superintendent of the Bunker Hill grounds.

Now, an expert is wanted who can give on the end of the sword so the crack won't show.

75 Miles an Hour Is the Speed of Mayor's New Auto

WANTED — A good, reliable name for a municipal automobile. Address JOHN F. FITZGERALD, Mayor, City Hall, Boston, Mass.

The city of Boston has bought a new automobile for Mayor John F. Fitzgerald's use during his incumbency of the office on Court street. It is a 60-horsepower, seven-passenger Knox Model S. The new car cost $5,000 and will make seventy-five miles an hour with the throttle wide open.

This is the third car that the city has bought for Mayor Fitzgerald. The first, which was christened Sweet Adeline, was purchased during his first administration and sold at public auction by the Hibbard administration.

The car which the new Knox Simplex replaces will probably be converted into a truck for the fire department.

The Mayor's aide-de-camps are searching their souls for catchy and appropriate name for the new speed wagon.

SUE SCHOOLMASTER, DEMANDING $10,000

J. Gardner Bassett, master of the Bigelow School in South Boston, has been sued for $10,000 by Richard J. Sullivan, who claims to have been a pupil at the school. The suit charges that the master committed an assault on Sullivan May 10.

LOS ANGELES, July 24.—Free lunches have been formally abolished from saloons in Los Angeles by a law passed by the City Council. The law will take effect in thirty days.

THREE CHILDREN SERIOUSLY HURT IN FALL FROM ROOF

Three children were seriously injured today by falling from the roof of the house at No. 102 Chelsea street, East Boston, when they ran to the edge to watch fire apparatus passing along the street. The injured children were:

Mary Delcora, six. No. 102 Chelsea street, East Boston.

John Delcora, four. No. 102 Chelsea street.

Rose Ferrara, nine. No. 470 Commercial street, Boston.

The three children were taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital. Each suffered multiple injuries. Their condition was said to be serious.

The fire alarm was rung in from Box 626 for a rubbish blaze near Porter and Paris streets, East Boston.

R. L. RAYMOND MAY BE FEDERAL JUDGE

Robert L. Raymond of the law firm of Raymond & Gordon, is the latest candidate mentioned for the vacancy on the bench of the United States District Court which will be created when Judge Dodge moves up to the Circuit Court. Mr. Raymond is an original Taft man, and is said to be a close friend of the President. If he is named Massachusetts will have the youngest federal judge in the country.

WOMAN ENTRY IN GREAT AIR RACE

MANITOU BRINGS STUDENTS HOME

Delayed by fog in the iceberg zone east of Sable Island, the Red Star liner Manitou reached port today, two days late, from Antwerp. Among the eighty-six passengers were students who have won degrees earned by their studies abroad. One Boston girl, Miss Ida P. Clough, got a Ph.D. at Berlin University. Bernhardt Hoeft, head of the Berlin schools, also was a passenger. He will study the American school system.

ECUADOR 'QUAKE CAUSES PANIC

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 24.—This city was heavily shaken by an earthquake at 7 o'clock this morning. It was the heaviest shock experienced here in years, and the inhabitants were in a panic. Hundreds fled from the city.

CHARGE POLICE HEAD WITH SULTAN PLOT

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24.—Investigation of a plot to kill the Sultan resulted today in the suspension of the director of police and commandant of the gendarmerie. Officers from the Sultan's palace guard have been appointed to succeed them. Amnesty will be granted to the Albanian insurgents if they lay down their arms.

CANOE VICTIM'S BODY FOUND IN A POND

MARLBORO, July 24.—The body of Charles Lester Bartlett was recovered today in Fort Meadow Pond, where he was drowned from a canoe on Saturday. A continued search with divers had been made and today Dr. G. J. Delany and City Marshal Berry found the body floating on the water. Bartlett was the son of the late Charles L. Bartlett, former mayor of the city. He was very popular and was assistant superintendent of a large shoe factory here.

BARTENDER WINS PRINCETON COURSE

CHICAGO, July 24.—John Larsen, nineteen, employed in his father's saloon as a bartender, has been selected by the Princeton Club of Chicago for a scholarship, and will have his expenses paid for four years at the university by the club. After a investigation of the boy's habits and home life, he was selected as a "man of all-round ability." The club selects one man each year upon whom to bestow a scholarship at Princeton.

PHILADELPHIA PIER AND STEAMER BURN

MARCUS HOOK, Pa., July 24.—Fire at the plant of the Union Petroleum Company today destroyed the warehouse, barrel factory, tin factory, several oil tanks and part of the wharf of the company, and almost wrecked the British tank steamer Trinidadian. Several freight cars also burned. The loss aside from that sustained by the steamer is estimated at $020,000.

OFFICERS OUT TO ARREST 'L' MEN

Elevated Employes Ignore Summonses and Pelletier Gets After Them.

there was racing and chasing all the same.

The result was that all the missing witnesses were hustled to the court house by the Elevated authorities before the police could serve warrants.

Explain to Judge Pierce.

When the delinquents arrived at the court house they were taken before Judge Pierce to explain why they had not obeyed punctually the Grand Jury summons.

Meanwhile the Grand Jury had been proceeding with its questioning of those witnesses which had appeared.

James L. Richards of the executive committee of the Elevated directors was notified at noon to appear at the Grand Jury room at 2 o'clock. A summons for the following men, issued for Mr. Richards, President Bancroft and other high officials of the road, but they were told they would be notified when actually wanted. The notice sent to Mr. Richards was that he must be on hand at 2 o'clock. But Mr. Richards said that as was expected at the at the State House for a conference with Governor Foss on the Elevated strike at 2 o'clock, so he was excused from Grand Jury attendance till after that conference.

Vice-President Quizzed.

Vice-President Brush of the Boston Elevated was before the Grand Jury for half an hour. He was interrogated by District Attorney Pelletier and the members of the Grand Jury. After he had finished he went to the clerk's office for his witness fee of $1.25, with an additional ten cents for carfare.

"Officer C. Lee of the claim department followed Mr Brush on the stand. He was quizzed for about fifteen minutes. Superintendent Wilkins was the next witness.

When District Attorney Pelletier went to Judge Pierce to ask for the capiases, he didn't have to mention the actual word himself, for the minute the District Attorney stated that Elevated employes had failed to answer Grand Jury summonses the judge said: "The capiases shall be issued at once."

The capias warrants were for the following men:

Fred Battle, Grove Hall.
J. A. Brown, Division 3.
Patrick Mulligan, Jamaica Plain.
John Savaza, Chestnut Hill.
Clarence Whitcomb, No. 17 Bullard street, Dorchester.
William Connors, No. 52 Cabot street, Roxbury.
Charles Stock, Elmwood street, Roxbury.
William Warren, inspector at Jamaica Plain.
Ed. Whitmarsh, Division 1.
Clarence Learned, chief of the Elevated's "quickest service," No. 101 Milk street.

Summonses Issued.

The District Attorney's office and the Grand Jury issued thirty-five summonses yesterday for witnesses to appear before the Grand Jury at 9:30 today to testify regarding alleged perjury and intimidation by Elevated officials. These summonses were served by Inspectors Waite, Laughlin and Mitchell, and by Lieutenant Rooney of the District Attorney's staff.

Some of the witnesses could not be notified by telephone just when to come so that their time would not be wasted.

The Grand Jury and District Attorney were on hand at 9:30, but the only one of the Elevated working forces present was Paymaster G. Lester Marston.

The District Attorney waited till 10:15 with patience growing less and less. After giving the delinquents three-quarters of an hour's grace he decided to try a more forcible argument than a summons. He sought a judge to issue capias warrants.

The only Superior Court justice in the building just then was Judge Pierce, who was hearing cases in the equity motion session of the Superior Civil court. Judge Pierce halted this case and went into the second session to listen to a request from the District Attorney.

The District Attorney said:

"May it please Your Honor, regarding the matter before the Grand Jury in connection with the Elevated strike, I found it my duty to issue a number of summonses, about thirty-five or more. These men summoned were to be on hand at 9:30 today. The Grand Jury reported at that hour, and, though they waited very patiently for some time, not a soul appeared. I had to telephone for Vice-President Brush. A man by the name of Marston came late. None of the others appeared at all."

Judge Pierce: "Are any of them here now?"

Mr. Pelletier replied they were not, whereupon the justice instantly ordered capiases to be issued.

Clerk Manning read the ten names aforesaid. A court officer repeated the names, defaulting the absent witnesses. Then the capiases were issued and were given to the officers to serve.

But before this Superintendent Wilkins of the Elevated had had his experience. The "super" arrived at the District Attorney's office at 10:25. Mr. Pelletier had gone over to the court. An attache took Mr. Wilkins over there. When Mr. Wilkins entered the courtroom the District Attorney said to Judge Pierce:

"Your Honor, he is one of those summoned to report at 9:30. He just came in. It seems proper to me that the court should tell that man what his duties are."

Judge Pierce called Wilkins right up to the bar enclosure rail and asked why he was late.

Stammered His Explanations.

Wilkins stammered a bit and explained that he was given to understand that when he was actually wanted he would be notified by telephone.

Judge Pierce said that there appeared to be a misunderstanding in this one case. Wilkins started away. The District Attorney called: "Just a minute, Mr. Wilkins. You're not excused." So Wilkins stayed by till he was taken around to the Grand Jury room.

Mayor Fitzgerald Confident of Peace

We have had a very satisfactory talk this morning and everything has moved along splendidly.

There seems to be a friendly feeling all around and a desire on the part of everybody to get together, and the outlook is good.

All phases of the situation from the carmen's point of view were taken up and there were no difficulties suggested that seemed impossible to surmount. I am very optimistic for an immediate settlement.—Mayor Fitzgerald after today's conference at the State House with Governor and carmen.

EARLY DAWN IS SAFE AT PORT

The Boston racing sloop Early Dawn III., dismasted in Monday's gale off the Maine coast, and for which the greatest alarm and anxiety were felt among friends of the owner, Herold V. Krogman of Boston, and his six passengers, put in today at Little Harbor, near Portsmouth, N. H., under jury rig, while two revenue cutters were making a search to locate her. Messages telling of the safety of Krogman and his friends aboard the sloop were received in Boston today.

The craft had been missing for thirty-six hours. Those on board had thrilling experiences, it was learned today. On the Early Dawn III. were the owner, Mr. Krogman, Captain Fred Franklin, Foster Harrington, E. Miles Sumner, Conrad Smith, Dr. Louis Banks and William Gould.

The Revenue Cutter Woodbury had started early today on her hunt for the missing yacht when the dispatch was received in Portland, telling of the safety of the boat. The Woodbury was recalled, and efforts were made to notify the Revenue Cutter Androscoggin of the safety of the craft and those on board.

Mrs. Carrie W. Krogman, of No. 1481 Beacon street, Brookline, mother of the owner of the sloop, talked with her son over the long distance telephone. All were safe, but the yacht was damaged.

SHOOTS LAWYER, WOUNDS CLERK IN NEW YORK OFFICE

NEW YORK, July 24.—Joseph Fettretch, senior member of the firm of Fettretch & Seydel, attorneys, at No. 41 Park Row, was shot and killed by a former client in his office on the ninth floor, shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. A clerk who attempted to save his employer also was wounded. The assassin was overcome and arrested. He is Joseph J. Conroy of Brooklyn. Fettretch was appointed referee to hear both sides of a domestic quarrel of Conroy's, and did not report in time to satisfy Conroy.

MIKADO PASSES AN UNFAVORABLE NIGHT

TOKIO, July 24.—Emperor Mutsuhito passed an unfavorable night, and the hopes of the Empress and physicians, which had been raised by favorable developments, again were at a low ebb. An official bulletin today reads: "Last night the Emperor did not have much sleep. His temperature is 99.5. His pulse is 88, and although irregular, is rather strong. Steady general fatigue is noticeable." He was able to take some nourishment." Dr. Miura said there would have to be further signs of improvement before recovery could be predicted.

WOULD-BE SUICIDE CALLS MILES KIN

NEW YORK, July 24.—Harry Childs, who claims to be a relative of General Nelson A. Miles, tried to blow himself in his cell door in Newark N. J. He says he is a Tech graduate. He was under arrest as a vagrant.

DEATHS

E. OSCAR DOANE, who, as a member of a construction crew assisted in driving the golden spike on the Union Pacific road, which united coast to coast, is dead at his home, No. 27 Vining street, Malden, aged sixty-eight.

CHARLES W. PINER, who was killed Monday in an automobile accident at Rochester, N. H., will be buried today from his late home, No. 7 Brenton street, Dorchester. Interment will be at Buffalo, N. Y., tomorrow.

TIMOTHY SULLIVAN, one of Walpole's leading citizens, is dead at his home on Fiske street, after a long illness. He was seventy years old.

I. W. W. MEN VOTE TO STICK

NEW BEDFORD, July 24.—The Industrial Workers of the World refused to back up their leaders in their threat to send them back to work if the A. F. of L. refused to call a general strike, and were out in force today. Most of the strikers flocked to the Butler Mill, the only one now running in the South End.

Again, as every day since the strike started, they were met by a wall of police who, with drawn clubs, kept them beyond the 100-yard "dead line." There were fears of more riots today and the police were prepared to cope with any emergency that might arise.

The refusal of the I. W. W. strikers to follow their leaders came as no surprise to the A. F. of L.

"Frankly I do not see what good it would have done them to withdraw," said President John Holin of the Textile Council. "I expected that they would stay out. These plants will not be open just to let the small number of I. W. W. workers in. This decision has little effect on our strike, one way or another."

As a result of the activities of the committee from the Ministerial Union, which has been busy seeing representatives of the manufacturers and weavers, it is persistently reported today that a conference may be arranged between the Manufacturers' Association, Ministerial Union, State Board of Arbitration and Weavers' Union, in an effort to bring about some compromise in the strike situation.

Slept Four Nights on Ice; Court Now Finds Him 'Guilty'

Here is the story of Greater Boston's laziest "ice man."

He is Christopher Knight of Fields Court, Melrose. He slept on ice in a Melrose icehouse and liked it so well he tried it again—and then again—and yet again for a fourth time. In the Malden District Court today the story of the cold storage naps was told to Judge Bruce, and Knight was found guilty. The technical wording of the boil-on-ice charges was "trespassing."

According to the witnesses, Knight on four occasions was found sleeping beside huge cakes of ice in an icehouse near his home.

The Melrose police are wondering if an icehouse doesn't beat the ordinary refrigerators all hollow for real rest on a hot Summer's night. They said it was evident Knight thought so.

WOMAN SWALLOWS HER FALSE TEETH

Mrs. Carrie Smith, thirty-five years old, of No. 5 Pendick street, Lynn, swallowed her false teeth today. She was taken to the Lynn Hospital. Several unsuccessful attempts were made to remove the teeth. The woman's condition is serious. The teeth only became lodged more firmly in her throat.

STATE HOUSE CONFERENCES HASTEN STRIKE SETTLEMENT

After the second session of Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald and representatives of the striking Elevated employes at the State House today it was learned that, between the first and second sessions, Governor Foss called up Chief Justice Aiken on the long-distance, at Springfield and secured an agreement from the chief justice to accelerate the trial of the appealed cases of Elevated strikers who have been convicted in the lower courts of rioting and other offences since the strike began.

It was believed that this action would eliminate the bitch that arose in the negotiations for settlement of strike over taking back those men convicted in the lower courts who have appealed and who have stoutly maintained their innocence.

Strikers' Present Terms.

The second session this afternoon was brief. The strikers' committees offered terms on which they would settle the strike. These terms were reduced to writing so that the offer could be submitted to the Elevated officials at 3 o'clock.

"Both Governor Foss and I," said Mayor Fitzgerald, while the offer was being put in writing, "think the men's offer of settlement is very fair. There shouldn't be any difficulty in securing a satisfactory conclusion. They are not asking for anything but what he directors of the Elevated consistently could grant. The whole thing now rests with the Elevated directors."

At an hour's conference this morning certain propositions were made to the strikers' committee.

The session was adjourned to give the strike committee time to consider these propositions and to meet the Governor and Mayor at 1:30.

The schedule then was for the Governor and Mayor, after hearing from the strike committee, to meet Elevated officials.

One of these conferences it was confidently expected that the strike would be settled early.

First Conference at 10:30.

The first State House conference was called at 10:30. It lasted one hour and five minutes. Those present were Governor Foss, Mayor Fitzgerald, the Mayor's assistant secretary, Edward Moore, and the following committee of seven for the strikers: James H. Vahey, counsel for the local carmen; Fred Fay, organizer and vice-president; P. F. Sheehan, representing the International Carmen's Union, and W. L. Murray and Thomas F. Shine of the local union (the strikers' and President Frank X. McCarthy and Secretary Henry Abrahams of the Boston Central Labor Union.

When the conferee came out the strike representatives said the Governor would issue a statement. But when the Mayor came out—and he was all smiles—he said:

Everything went off splendidly. Governor Foss and I had a very satisfactory talk with the men's committee. The committee has retired to consider some of the suggestions that we have broached to them. We shall reconvene at 1:30 this afternoon. Following that session with the men's committee, the Governor and I will meet the officials of the Elevated at 2:30. There appears to be a splendid feeling all around. Everything looks bright for an early settlement of the strike.

Mayor Confident of Peace.

It was a very satisfactory conference. We confer again with the men and with the Elevated.

As I now view the situation, I see no insurmountable difficulties to an immediate settlement.

Before the conference Organizer Fred Fay declared that the settlement of the strike rests with the strikers. The keynote of his statement was that the local strikers themselves and not outside officials or organizers will have the deciding voice. His statement was:

The prospect of an early settlement, to me, looks exceedingly bright.

I see no reason why an honorable settlement cannot be effected before the end of this week.

If the officials of the Elevated meet the situation in the same spirit in which we do, such questions as are not disposed of as a result of these joint conferences of the Governor and Mayor can safely be left to arbitration.

Built on Arbitration.

Our organization is built on the cornerstone of arbitration. In justice to the traveling public, as well as to the officials of the railway companies throughout the country, we always have attempted to avoid industrial disputes wherever possible, with honor to ourselves.

In the pending settlement of the Boston strike there will be no exceptions to this country-wide rule of our organization.

But, such settlement as is made, in common with all other questions of a local nature, will finally be decided by a vote of the local union.

The men in this city voted to strike and it will be their vote and only that which will call it off.

The MEN'S Store

NOTICE! Your Reading This Is Not a Waste of Time.

We have done what we could to bring into pleasing conditions the goods that come to popular thought at this time of the year.

The basis of the Men's Store is the Best Furnishings. Gathering the best merchandise. Doing the best that can be done with money, skill, with restless, constant energy, with cultivated taste, with business experience to bring the things you need. Selling them at the least. Giving best service. Here are five items. Not many out of a storeful. But they are illustrative. Read the details. Come see them. Buying is another question.

$1.00 Pongee Shirts 65c

It's a smooth, silky stuff dubbed Pongee, because at arm's-length you'll mistake it for the real Oriental weave. Helio, blue, black, gray, tan stripes on white grounds; also plain white and tan. They are regular $1.00 Shirts; special at 65c.

$2.00 Negligee Shirts 95c

This is not a large lot. Among them are the famous "Eagle," "Congress" and "Earl & Wilson" brands—neat tinted stripes, French cuffs. In the same group are Madras Shirts, slightly mussed from handling. A few are worth $1.50. The balance are regular $2.00 Shirts. Special at 95c.

Men's Negligee Shirts, Worth $1.65 Up to $2.50, Choice . . . .

Plain or pleated bosoms, made of strictly high-grade Russian corded madras—the fabric shown by exclusive custom Shirt makers who charge from $3.50 to $5.50. We guarantee the colors. They will not fade. Worth up to $2.50; special at $1.65.

75c Night Shirts at 59c

Men's Night Shirts, made of muslin or cambric, cut full and wide and finished in the best manner. They were made to sell at 75c—and every garment in the lot is well worth 75c. It is merely a whim on our part that the price is reduced to 59c during this sale.

Men's $1.50 Pajamas 95c

Made of madras and soft mercerized material, finished with large frogs and pearl buttons.

Go into any haberdashery store and you'll find similar Pajamas priced at $2.00. We sell them under ordinary conditions at $1.50. It is simply a queer turn that enables us to let you take them now at 95c.

SUMMER FURNITURE REDUCED 25 PER CENT

Less Than Original Price:

Reed, French Willow and Porch Furniture—green or brown—has fallen in with the current notion of the Pre-Inventory Sale and is being sold at one-quarter off.

Nothing is here for mere show and glitter. The Furniture we offer is meant for long service. It is for use.

The difference in Furniture is worth studying. Easy enough to choose wrong in some stores. Know your store. If you knew this one as thoroughly as we do and bestowed your patronage accordingly, there'd be no questions where you would buy.

But the business grows. And as growth comes of favor—and favor is won solely by service—this store and this stock are proven worthy.

For thoughtful, thrifty buyers it is a harvest time. Every sulking remnant or odd piece has been drummed up and a "get-out-quick" price tag pinned to it.

The people everywhere have found out long since that this store is never undersold.

Cardinal Gibbons in Splendid Health, Birthday Message

WESTMINSTER, Md., July 24.—"While I have today no special message in which the public would be interested, you may say to my friends that I have spent my birthday quietly, peacefully and happily; that I am feeling in splendid health and enjoying every moment of my sojourn in this lovely spot," was the message of greeting sent by Cardinal Gibbons in his seventy-eighth birthday.

15,000 GAY ON CHURCH OUTING

Thousands of East Boston residents had a holiday today at Point of Pines. They were members of the large East Boston parishes of the Church of the Assumption and of Our Lady Star of the Sea.

Instead of holding a separate outing for each parish, the clergy and people of both joined, and as all were neighbors and acquainted the result was a gathering unprecedented in Summer church outings. It is estimated 15,000 men, women and children enjoyed the attractions of the field day, which included a splendid program of athletic events. Two orchestras furnished music for dancing, and all sorts of games and pastimes were provided for the children.

The Rev. Joseph V. Fitzgerald and the Rev. William McDonough, pastors of the two parishes which held the reunion, were in general charge of the day's arrangements. In the details of the affair the pastors had the assistance of large committees and also of their assisting clergy. Rev. James J. McMorrow, Rev. John H. Condon, Rev. Fabyan V. O'Connell, Rev. Richard Millard and Rev. Richard Boland.

Your Own Shelf

By MORTON BIRGE.

Friend Wifey comes through with demand for a shelf
To hold extra pens and a spider or two,
You say: "This is easy. I'll build it myself—"
Like nine out of ten other dough-heads would do.

Big business of hammer and nails and a board.
And blithely you work till you hammer your thumb.
Then savage the curses, by Wifey deplored—
"I wonder, John Henry, you're not stricken dumb."

Friend Wife sicks a carpenter onto the shelf.
The "Carp" puts it up without turning a hair
And after it's done you start kidding yourself:
"A pretty good job on that shelf I did there."

Astor Sails: 'Won't Wed or Return to Harvard in Fall'

NEW YORK, July 24.—Vincent Astor departed aboard the Mauretania at one o'clock this morning on his long-anticipated visit to his mother, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, and his sister, Alice, in England. The Astor heir arrived at the pier early in the evening accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Dobbyns.

In regard to reports of a forthcoming marriage engagement announcement rumors having mentioned Ina Claire, the actress, and Margaret Andrews of Newport, young Astor said:

"I am not engaged and have no present intention of matrimony. I shall be abroad six weeks, during which I shall take a motor tour of Germany with my mother and sister. After a visit to Baden I intend to return to New York. Owing to the pressure of business cares, I shall not return to Harvard next Fall."

HUNT MISSING NORTH ADAMS MAN

NORTH ADAMS, July 24.—Mrs. James Smith of North Adams has reported to the police that her husband, while visiting his son, James Smith, Jr., on Dale street, Hoosac, last June, went for a walk one afternoon and never came back. She has asked the police to help her search for him.

AUTO WOULDN'T GO WITH SYRUP AS OIL

ENTERVALE, N. H., July 24.—N. R. Young, of New York, who is spending the Summer at Intervale, came to grief on a motor trip to Jackson because a joker substituted maple syrup for auto oil in his garage supply.

Dress All in Laces Next Season, Dame Fashion Decrees

NEW YORK, July 24.—Paul Ullman, a St. Louis lace importer, arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from a three months tour of Europe, where he has been observing the direction to which the fancies of the fashionably attired are pointing.

"Lace will be the dominant material for the attire of fashionable women next season," he said. "The French resorts are filled with women wearing gowns of that material, and in some cases the fad has become so popular that it is by no means an uncommon sight to see women attired in lace. Bathing suits made of lace uppers, lace hats and lace gowns.

"Tunic skirts, as the new pleated skirts are being manufactured entirely of lace and the sheath skirt is still in demand. The effect is startling. Lace stockings in countless colors are also fashionable and I think will be liked in America.

"Bohemian made lace is in great demand. English laces have taken a back seat in the fashionable world at present and the Nottingham makers are forced to the Continental laces. Irish laces are not in demand.

WEDDING BELLS QUIET AS MOTHER CRIES OUT "HALT"

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 24.—Albert L. Cloutier and Adea C. Cloutier of this city were rudely interrupted as they were ascending the steps of St. Anne's Church, when the frantic mother of the bride-to-be, with a policeman at her heels, dashed up the steps and separated the couple.

"My daughter is only seventeen years old," she cried out. "She cannot marry without my permission. I refuse to allow her to marry this man. Arrest him."

Finally the officer induced the bridal party to postpone the ceremony, but told the mother he could not arrest the would-be bridegroom.

FRESNO DAN TELLS ABOUT LEAVING RUSSELL HOME FOR WEST

EXECUTOR ALMY IS CALLED TO STAND IN STRANGE WILL CASE.

By CLEMENT L. POLLOCK.

The Russell drama, with Fresno Dan as the star was resumed today in the East Cambridge court.

A large and appreciative audience was present. The applause was lacking, but that was mostly because Master Percy has requested that that feature be omitted.

Fresno Dan, as the hero, was noncha'ant today as ever. He takes no part with an easy grace. He looked in the trio for his solo contribut. "I don't remember," as he jauntily stepped to the front of the stage when the curtain was raised.

The Dakota Dandy, right at the school of the star was pleased to recall. One secretary man was crowded in among the feminined throng. He is Mr. Leonard, an old resident of Melrose. He is a staunch Dakota Dandy, as are all those who sit in the box.

Fresno Real Happy.

Dressed in gray and with a hat from which a tall gray plume flutters, a handsome woman occupies a front seat in the Dakota Dan box. She is Mrs. E. R. McLaughlin of Boston. She thinks the California prune picker is an imposter.

But what the audience thinks does not interfere with the individuality of Fresno Dan. He is not a subject for mental suggestion. Even since the Dakota Dan contingent smiles decidedly in his face he remains unmoved. The only exhibition of temper Fresno Dan has shown was when William C. Scharton asked if he was not dissatisfied with the $15 a week that is being paid him and if he had threatened to return to the Pacific coast without Ferdinand B. Almy "came across" with more money.

Fresno Dan can live on clover on ten dollars a week and less. An occasional drink, a moving picture show, a crack at the California papers in the Boston Public Library and a good rest in the Russell home—that's all Fresno Dan wants, apparently, and he resents the insinuation that he would give up this sinecure for the uncertainty of a prune-picking income.

William Odlin, Fresno Dan's personal counsel, wore a black four-in-hand tie today to match the ponderous rimming of his glasses. It also matched the black four-in-hand tie which Fresno Dan sported today. This subtle feature is not to be taken in any sense as a badge of warning, but simply as a conservative manifestation of quiet taste.

Following the arrival of Mr. Odlin, Ferdinand B Almy and Robert Nason walked in. Mr. Nason, too, wore a black four-in-hand tie.

The court room was filled by 10 o'clock when the hearing was resumed. Neither Mr. Scharton nor Dakota Dan had appeared when the clock struck. But as court officer walked in and took his seat—it was not official, just curiosity. Master Percy, quiet, unassuming, patient, watched the clock and the door as the minutes passed after 10 o'clock.

The Old, Sweet Song.

It was 10:05 when Scharton, Mr. McNally and Dakota Dan swung into court.

"Did you have an accident when a young man?" began Scharton.

"Yes; I cut my leg in the cellar at our house."

"Who treated you?"

"I don't think I was treated."

"What doctor?"

"I don't remember."

"Why do you always sing that song, 'I don't remember'? Were you ever in court before?"

"No."

"Were you ever told that you could say 'I don't remember,' so as to prevent perjury?"

"No."

"Why are you so emphatic in that?"

"Well, because I know what I'm saying."

Scharton asked about Mrs. Johnson of Minneapolis. Fresno Dan said he knew her as Mrs. Yorke in Melrose.

"Have you got a scar on your eye?"

"I haven't noticed it."

"Haven't you a scar on your eye?"

"I may have a wrinkle."

Scharton walked up to Fresno Dan and looked him in the face at close quarters. Fresno Dan did not quail.

"So you have no scar in your eye?"

"No."

"Did you have any friend who had a scar on his eye?"

"No."

"You can't recall such a friend with such a scar?"

"I can't recall."

"Where was Mrs. Johnson living in 1883?"

"She was living at the Russell house at that time."

"Has anything been said to you about Mrs. Johnson?"

"Mrs. Sargeant of Lynn might have told me."

Mrs. Johnson Divorce.

Fresno Dan explained that Mrs. Johnson had been divorced and was known as Bertha Yorke when he left Melrose. She had been divorced a few years old when Fresno Dan left Melrose. She had been married when sixteen years old.

"Did she obtain a divorce or her husband?"

"I don't remember."

"Was she a relative of yours?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever meet Johnson?"

"No."

"Do you know his business?"

"No."

"Where did Mrs. Johnson come from?"

"Concord."

"What was her mother's name?"

"Mattie Yorke."

"What was her maiden name?"

"Bread."

"What relation was Mrs. Yorke to your father?"

"First cousin."

Fresno Dan said he could not say how the relationship came about. Mrs. Sargent talked to him about Mrs. Yorke.

Dakota Dan Laughs Aloud.

As Fresno Dan was hesitating about the relationship Dakota Dan aid Mrs Sargent in Lynn, Dakota Dan laughed aloud.

"Will Mrs. Sargent be a witness?"

"No, it won't be necessary."

"Well, if necessary, she will be called, won't she?"

"No, we have enough without her."

"Who went with you to see Mrs. Sargent?"

"Miss Almy."

"How old was Mrs. Sargent when you left home?"

"I don't remember."

"Did you ever see her husband?"

"I don't remember about it."

"Is her husband dead?"

"Yes."

"When did he die?"

"I don't remember."

"Didn't you ask her about it?"

"No."

"Weren't you interested?"

"No."

Fresno Dan said the fact that there was a Johnson in the family had nothing to do with his living there. Johnson, he said, "Why did you take the name of Johnson?"

"Because it was convenient."

Meets Bertha Yorke.

"Where did you first meet Bertha Yorke when you returned from the West?"

"In Mr. Nason's office."

"Did Mr. Almy come in with her?"

"I don't think he did."

"Was Almy with her that?"

"Because I don't think he did."

"Do you say that because you don't want to put her and Mr. Almy too close together?"

"No, I haven't given it a thought."

Fresno Dan said finally that in 1910 when he met Bertha Yorke in Nason's office her name was Mrs. Avery.

"Who told you her name was Mrs. Avery?"

"She may have told me herself."

"Was there anything said that Bertha Yorke was in love with Dan Russell?"

"No."

"Was it ever said Dan Russell left home because of her?"

"No."

"Was Dan Russell ever in love with Bertha Yorke?"

"No, I don't think so."

Fresno Dan said that Bertha Yorke had been married to a Mr. Grant.

"Was there anything said about Daniel Blake Russell to be the best man at the Grant wedding?"

"She asked me to be the best man."

"What did she say to you?"

"I don't remember that—it is too long ago."

"You didn't stay for the wedding?"

"No, I wanted to go West."

Fresno Dan said he had discussed for a year before 1885 that he was going West. He talked it over with his father and mother. He did not discuss it with his brother William, he said, because William didn't talk much then.

"You were good friends, weren't you?"

"Yes."

Fresno Dan said he had visited Mrs. Avery at Minneapolis for eight days. He didn't see Avery. Avery, it appears, was a travelling man.

"Why did you take the long trip to Minneapolis?"

"She told me she wanted me to move."

"She invited you out there?"

"Yes, in May, 1910, she wrote me a letter."

"Have you the letter?"

"Yes, at home."

The Trip to California Under Special Care

"You feel like sorting out and tying together the memories of this trip and keeping them separate from all other trips." A woman recently said this after a pleasant experience on a Burlington Route Through Tourist Car Excursion party to California. She traveled alone, but met many agreeable people on the car, which was in charge of a special conductor. This gentlemanly official was a well-informed, courteous man, who went all the way through with the party, looking after everyone's comfort and attending to all the little details of the trip. Thus a woman or child is one of these parties can travel with perfect safety and freedom from care. If you would like to know more about the Burlington's Through Tourist Car Excursions to California, or to the Pacific Northwest, please write me a postal and I'll send you maps, booklets, pictures, etc., by return mail. HONEY BREAD

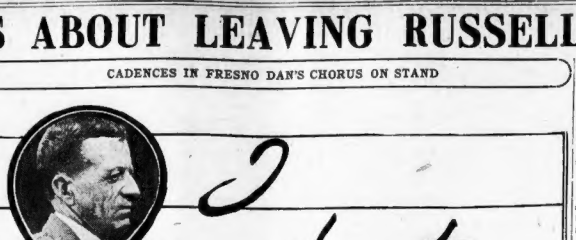
CADENCES IN FRESNO DAN'S CHORUS ON STAND



Fresno Dan, while making his oft repeated answer of "I don't remember," let his voice range up and down the scale. Sometimes he touched as low as the "d-e-e-p" in "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

"Will you bring it to court?"

"Yes."

"Do you know Johnson's name was Henry?"

"No."

"Did you ever see a photograph of Johnson?"

"No."

"Who married them?"

"What minister?"

Fresno Dan said he was in the hospital two weeks in Minneapolis with pneumonia.

"What name did you go by?"

"It may have been Jones."

"What hospital was it?"

"The Sisters."

"What was the garb of the nurses?"

The Russell will fight has brought enmity between a brother and sister. The brother is a valiant friend of Fresno Dan. The sister is a steadfast Dakota Danite. Both knew the real Daniel Blake Russell. The man used to ramble in the woods with him. The girl tagged after them. She is married. She attends the hearing every day and does her housework at night.

"I don't remember."

"Where was the hospital?"

"I don't remember."

"When was it?"

"In March, 1907."

"Who took you to the hospital?"

"I took a car."

"Why didn't you go to a doctor?"

"I did, and he sent me to a hospital."

"What was his name?"

"I don't remember."

"Did he have dark brown hair?"

"Yes."

Dark Brown Doctor.

This reply brought a smile to the faces of many in the audience as "dark brown" hair is a favorite of Fresno Dan.

"Were you dangerously ill?"

"Yes."

"Did it occur to you to write to your father or mother?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I didn't want to let them know where I was."

"And yet you parted from them in a friendly way?"

"Yes."

Forgets Doctor's Name.

Fresno Dan said he was treated by a doctor as a young man on Boylston street, but he did not recall his name.

"Was it Dr. Grady?"

"I don't remember."

"Do you remember a Dr. Seeley in Melrose?"

"Yes, I heard of Dr. Seeley."

"Don't you remember that Dr. Seeley was a woman?"

"I don't remember."

Scharton asked Fresno Dan if he ever signed his name in the book at the Old State House. He said he could not remember.

"Were you ever insured?"

"Yes."

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

"Under what name have you sent registered letters since you came back?"

"I never sent any registered letters."

Fresno Dan said he had written some letters to friends.

"Will you swear you did not send money from Boston?"

"I will not swear."

Got $1,200 from Brother.

Fresno Dan said he did not know of a relative that needed money.

"How much money have you got out of Almy?"

"None."

"You got $1,200, didn't you?"

"I got that from my brother, William C. Russell."

"And that was $1,200?"

"Yes."

"Does that include this week's $10?"

"Yes."

"That is all," said Scharton.

It was 11:15 and this was Fresno Dan's seventh day.

Mr. Nason said he did not want to cross-examine Fresno Dan at this time. Scharton said that if Fresno Dan was to be cross-examined he wanted it done now. Otherwise, if Nason wanted him later, he would have to call Fresno Dan as his witness.

"I think," said Master Percy, "that it you want to cross-examine the witness you had better do it now."

Mr. Nason was given until noon to decide.

Ferdinand B. Almy was called to the stand.

"You were sworn?"

"Yes."

"You do believe in God?"

"Yes."

"You are executor of the will of the late Daniel Russell?"

"Yes, since 1907."

"He was a relative?"

"Yes, an uncle—my mother's brother."

"The will said that if Daniel Blake Russell should appear in twenty years William C. Russell should share the estate?"

Mr. Nason objected and the answer was struck out. Mr. Almy said he and William C. Russell were acting jointly.

"Did you at one time try to place William C. Russell in an insane asylum?"

"I object," shouted Mr. Nason.

Scharton said he proposed to show that the real factor in this case is not William C. Russell, but Ferdinand B. Almy and the attorneys in the case.

Scharton charged that Almy exercised a control over William C. Russell and guided Fresno Dan about to be identified.

Mr. Nason said that the whole thing in question was the standing of Dakota Dan in court.

"I shall show," said Scharton, "that Almy tried to place William C. Russell in an insane asylum because he was unable to attend to his estate.

"I claim here in court that there was a conspiracy and a deep-laid plot to defraud the rightful heir of his property."

A sharp legal argument followed. Nason said that the question of the conduct of the estate was not an issue. Master Percy said he would admit the question about the attempt to put William C. Russell in an asylum, so far as it affects the evidence of this witness. Nason handed Percy a small book with some law pages marked.

Clash Over Law.

"This law affects the credulity of a witness," remarked Percy.

The master studied the law carefully. The crowd increased. Many stood in the doorway. Master Percy and Nason discussed the law. Percy was inclined to be against Nason.

"We are trying a single issue," said Nason; "that is whether the petitioner (Daniel Blake Russell) is who he says he is. The question asked is not material. It is premature. Scharton is beginning at the wrong end."

Nason Dares Scharton.

Nason said it was up to Scharton to dare to ask Almy if the petitioner is Daniel Blake Russell. Scharton said that the idea was absurd.

Master Percy remarked that it had been testified that Almy had been active in showing that Dakota Dan is not Daniel Blake Russell and he thought a foundation had been laid for the question asked by Scharton which started the clash.

Nason insisted that Almy be asked whether or not Dakota Dan is Daniel Blake Russell before Scharton could go ahead.

"Have you any authority?" asked Percy.

"Not by section and page," replied Nason, "but it seems it is familiar law."

Nason is skilful. He said that Scharton was trying to discredit his first witness —Fresno Dan—and that this could not be done.

The audience listened carefully to the argument. Fresno Dan did not attempt to follow the argument.

Almy is bald and gray. He has a small mustache. His face is rather florid. He speaks in a low voice. He wore a dark gray suit, a lay-down collar with a white striped four-in-hand tie. Mrs. Almy and their daughter were in court.

Cross-Examine Fresno.

Immediately after the luncheon recess, Mr. Nason took up the cross-examination of Fresno Dan. Nason represents the Russell estate and is friendly to Fresno Dan. He asked Fresno Dan about his employment when in Melrose before going West.

"I helped about the home," said Fresno Dan. "I helped in haying."

"What else did you do?"

"Roamed about in the woods."

"Did your friends call on you at home?"

"Well, I remember Ed Franta called."

"Was he entertained at the house or outside of the house?"

"Always outside of the house."

Fresno Dan asked about visits from Franta, said he recalled he had visited the house in 1876, when his father was sick.

"Have you reached twenty were more of your days spent without companionship?"

"Yes."

"Did you visit Boston?"

"Yes, often."

"Did you go alone?"

"Yes."

"What other trips did you make?"

"I once went to Martha's Vineyard."

Starts for New York.

Fresno Dan said he went out on Scot Pond once in a boat. The Californian said he read a good deal. He read the newspapers and the Youth's Companion.

"Did you do any studying?"

"I don't remember that I did."

"Did your father disapprove of your going away?"

"He thought it would be a good thing for me and he hoped I would come back again."

"Can you recall any details of your leaving home?"

"It was in the afternoon of June 10; I had no baggage."

"Did you see anyone you knew when you left the Wyoming station?"

"I don't remember—I must have."

"You said he had made up his mind to go as far as New York anyhow. He expected to return some time, but he did not remember how long he proposed to stay away."

"My stay in New York," testified Fresno Dan, "gave me a desire to see the rest of the country—to see Chicago."

"Well, what else do you recall about New York?"

"I remember there was a horse car and I rode on it."

Fresno Dan said he finally reached Minnesota and resolved to remain there awhile. He said he knew no one in Minnesota.

"What was the first work you did?"

"I worked in a hardware store in St. Paul."

Without any question the best thing I found in East Cambridge is Mrs. J. R. Marshall's blueberry pie. This testimonial was unsolicited, and I feel certain that Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley would say the same thing.

"Did you studiously avoid telling any one about where you came from?"

"Why?"

Hidden in the West.

"I didn't want my people to know where I was. I wanted to stay in the West."

"You and your brother William had very little in common, I believe?"

"Very little."

"With whom were you confidential at home?"

"My mother."

"Write your earliest recollection of your mother?"

"She had dark brown hair, weighed about 125 pounds and was about 5 feet 7 inches tall. I don't remember the color of her eyes.

"Do you mean you don't remember the color of her eyes at any time?"

"I don't remember any more at any time."

"Was she slight?"

"Yes."

"Thin or rounded?"

"Thin."

"What about her hearing?"

"She had a slight loss of hearing."

"Did she have any ear trumpet?"

"She had trumpet at one time, but not in her later years."

"When you were attending school did you ever have measles?"

"Yes."

"Did your mother help you?"

"I don't remember."

"Most home lessons?"

"I don't remember."

Fresno Dan said that his father often told him he ought to go to work.

Lost Job to German.

"Did that have any influence upon your leaving home?"

"Yes, I wanted to be independent."

"What wages did you get in the St. Paul hardware store?"

Fresno Dan said he worked two weeks and got discharged because they wanted a man who could speak German.

"What games did you take part in as a boy?"

Fresno Dan thought a long time and then said "I used to play croquet."

There was a laugh.

"I noticed," remarked Nason, "that there is a litter in the courtroom; probably they play croquet."

The witness recalled he played shinny and football.

"Did you ever have a fight?"

"Yes, with Henry Drake."

"What was the cause?"

"I got licked."

"What was the cause of the fight?"

"Henry Drake wanted to fight and I licked him and he stayed licked."

Mr. Nason remarked that Drake apparently used good judgment. Fresno recalled that he had a one-sided fight with Clarkie Storey. It was short and decisive for Fresno Dan came out second best.

The witness said he got into another fight with a boy and they were separated. Fresno Dan said he got caught in a mine cavein at Riverside, California, and had to go to a hospital seven weeks.

The witness said he had suffered from bay fever. It attacked him in this part of the country in June, but in California much earlier.

"When did you go to Fresno?"

"In 1904."

"Did you go there frequently?"

"Yes, after that."

"When were you first a peddler?"

"In Minnesota in 1885."

"You didn't peddle before you went West?"

"No."

"Did you see the reference to this case entirely by accident?"

"Yes. I was at Tom Meyer's and read it in his newspaper."

"Have you a picture of that piece you saw in the paper?"

"Yes. It is out to the house."

Puts in His Claim.

Fresno Dan said he read something about some of his folks being put in jail. He read that the side that lost would be put in jail.

"And you couldn't sleep that night?" inquired Nason.

"Yes."

"And you were conscience stricken."

"Yes."

Fresno Dan said he went to police and told a detective that an lawyer was trying to stand in his shoes and he wanted to declare himself.

The detective directed Fresno Dan to the office of Lawyer Cartwright. Fresno was questioned and his statement taken down. This took about an hour. Fresno Dan said. Cartwright telegraphed to William C. Russell.

"What was the result of the telegram?"

"An answer came that on lawyer was trying to stand in his shoes and he wanted to declare himself."

Fresno Dan made an affidavit which was sent to William C. Russell in the care of Sarah Almy. A telegram was sent to William C. Russell, saying the affidavit was on its way. There was no reply to the telegram or telegrams.

Later the affidavit was returned to Cartwright's office, the envelope not having been opened. A second affidavit was made out. It was similar to the first. This affidavit was sent to the Boston Globe.

"How soon after this did you start for the East?"

"About a week."

"Did you at any time in California meet a man named Preble?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"March 8, 1910."

Fresno Dan said Preble asked him a lot about Boston and Melrose.

Said He was Daniel Blake.

"Was Mr. Cartwright present when Preble questioned you?"

"Yes."

"How long did he question you?"

"As I remember, half an hour."

"Did you remember the examination with Mr. Preble?"

He was satisfied I was Daniel Blake," said Fresno Dan, omitting the word "Russell."

Then the witness added:

Imposter? Impossible!

"He told me I wasn't smart enough to be an imposter."

The whole Nason chuckle. It is through Preble, formerly a Boston lawyer, that Fresno Dan got started with Mr. Odlin as his personal attorney. Fresno Dan said he met two lawyers in Fresno named McLaughlin. They came from Malden. They formed the first Malden contingent.

"Have you ever seen these two men since?"

"No, I have not."

"You were interviewed by a reporter on the way East?"

"Yes, Mr. Park of Boston."

"Did you know him before?"

"No."

Fresno Dan said that Mr. Cartwright did most of the talking. Mr. Park was a Boston newspaper man, who died two weeks ago.

"Well," said Mr. Nason, proceeding quietly. His manner telling had its effect upon a bald-headed man who sat on a chair with his feet on another chair in front of the railing. He looked to the left of the judge. The man dropped off into a quiet slumber. Occasionally a horn honked on the unprotected rome of thought, whereat he brushed it away with a sweep of his hand. He regained it by a gesture of annoyance.

Fresno Dan said the first interview he had in Boston with anybody was in Nason & Proctor's office, and that Mr. Proctor, Mr. Odlin and Mr. Cartwright were present. He talked all day. Mr. Proctor questioned the claimant. A stenographer took down the questions. Other long interviews followed.

"As I recall," said Fresno Dan, "there were three successive days of interviews."

"Was your brother William present?"

"Yes, at all of the interviews."

"When did you know the result?"

Accepted as Brother.

"On the evening of the second my brother accepted me as Daniel Blake Russell."

"Was it announced orally?"

"Yes."

"Where were you?"

"At the Quincy House."

"By whom was the announcement made?"

"Mr. Cartwright."

Mr. Nason asked if William hadn't said something in the midst of the examination

SCHARTON ASKS ABOUT ATTEMPT TO PUT WILLIAM C. RUSSELL IN ASYLUM.

Miss Mary Murray, who attended the first Russell trial every day and began the present one right, is on a vacation. That is why she has not been in court this week. I was afraid Mary was ill or had gone back on the great Birthright Battle. Never mind, Mary, this case will be on when you come back and a warm welcome awaits you!

on thesecond day. But Fresno Dan could not remember.

An adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

DIVORCED WIFE DECLARES FRESNO IS NOT JOHN DREW

Fresno Dan is not John Drew. This fact Attorney William S. Scharton, counsel for Dakota Dan, established today to his entire satisfaction. Ever since the California claimant entered the celebrated Russell will case and was accepted by the family as the long-lost son, many residents of Boston and Melrose were firm in the belief that he was John Drew, a former resident of Melrose, who went West years ago. The pictures of the two men and their physical similarity were striking.

Fresno Dan denied on the witness stand some days ago that he was John Drew, but this did not satisfy counsel for Dakota Dan. He located the divorced wife of John Drew, a former Melrose girl, named Mollie Sequeira, whose name figured prominently in the evidence.

Drew's divorced wife was yesterday smuggled into court just before adjournment. Unknown to the spectators, opposing counsel had Fresno Dan brought close to him and got a good look. Today she had another look at the man and reported to Attorney Scharton that Fresno Dan was not her former husband. This severs the name of John Drew from the case.

The secret introduction of Mrs. Drew, who has since been married again and lives on Temple street, West End, was made possible by the detective work of Miss Hattie Keith, the former sweetheart of Dakota Dan, whose case she has championed from the start in common with scores of other Melrose women and men.

Realizing the importance of finding some one closely related to John Drew, Hattie Keith went out on a quiet hunt and after a few days' search succeeded in locating the former Mrs. Drew. She induced her to come into court with her. They arrived at the East Cambridge courtroom, where the Russell hearing is in progress, at 1:45 yesterday afternoon, fifteen minutes before court adjourned.

MRS. ROSENTHAL TELLS STORY TO WHITMAN

has gone to his work daily since the murder breakfast. He has gone to his home every night since then. He is absolutely frank about having served the men and tells willingly all he remembers of the details surrounding the meal.

"Jack" Rose drove up to the Lafayette baths in a taxicab about twenty minutes after 2 o'clock or 22 minutes after Rosenthal had been shot to death in front of the Hotel Metropole.

Rose walked calmly up the short flight of steps leading to the office, deposited his money and other valuable in a box provided for that purpose and then went down stairs to the baths. Before he disrobed he called up Lieutenant Charles Becker's apartment and conversed in low tones with Becker, telling him that Rosenthal had died almost instantly.

Then Rose went to his room, took off his clothes and placed himself in the hands of one of the bath attendants. After he had remained in the steamroom for a while, he was rubbed down, took a cold shower and then, wrapped in the same bathrobe as that in which he was to break fast five hours later, lay down to await some of his partners.

Actual Slayer Arrives.

The clock at the head of the stairway had hardly ceased striking the hour of 3 when "Bridgy" Webber entered the Lafayette baths. When he got to the basement floor he saw Rose lying on a couch, waiting for him. The two men held a whispered conversation, which lasted some ten or fifteen minutes, and then Webber started on the same course as Rose had gone through. While Webber was still in the steam room Sam Paul entered the baths to be followed within a very few minutes by one of the men who did the actual killing of Rosenthal.

The four men talked for a few minutes, and then Rose, with a cynical yawn, went to his room. Webber and Paul sat up a little longer, talking over the downfall of Rosenthal and other details. The real murderer sat apart, a Pariah even among those who had hired him to do the work.

There is no record that the slumbers of any of the four men were at all troubled. There is no record that any one of them called an attendant or asked for a drink. There is nothing to show that they did not sleep soundly until 8 o'clock, when they were all awakened according to instructions they had left.

Stern, as is his custom, reached the Lafayette baths at 7.30 that morning. He limited himself at first in the routine of straightening up the cafe which adjoins the barber shop in the basement. A few minutes after 8 o'clock Rose appeared in the cafe and ordered breakfast for four. Stern says that Rose was as imperturbable as ever. Stern knows Rose well for the Lafayette baths is a favorite resort of "Billiard Ball Jack."

Having ordered the "murder breakfast," and the three others not having put in an appearance, Rose stretched himself in a chair in the barber shop and had a shave. It did not take the barber long to shave Rose, for his beard is extremely fair and sparse, his chin being almost as devoid of hair as his head and the place where his eyebrows should be.

Notified by Stern that their meal was on the table, the four men entered the cafe. They had on only their bath night robes. Around the wrist of each was a string from which hung the key of his box. Rose, Webber and Paul were not fed by the keys. But the murdered man had used the Turkish baths, toyed with his key and joked about his "insurance."

For forty-five minutes the four men sat at their table. They ate as if they had all day to enjoy their meal. Whenever Stern approached them in performing the functions of his office conversation dropped. As he said today that there was not a sign from any of the men to show that each had not spent the preceding hours in the most ordinary way.

Breakfast over, the four dressed at leisure as they had eaten. Paul, Webber and Webber entered a taxicab and were driven up-town. Paul, less phlegmatic than "Billiard Ball Jack" and "Bridgy," was nervously to Astor place, eastward to 2nd avenue, and then down-town to the rooms of the association which bears his name.

Mrs. Rosenthal's Story.

Hysterical at times, and haunted by the fear that she would meet the same fate as her husband, Mrs. Herman Rosenthal appeared before the Grand Jury and declared that every word in her husband's affidavit against Lieutenant Becker was true. She said:

Mrs. Rosenthal, in answer to questions, charged repeatedly the police murdered her husband. She would not use the name of Becker in this connection. She said:

Every word that my husband put in the affidavit, in which he said that Lieutenant Becker was his gambling partner and that Becker had been dishonest with him, is as true as truth can be. I knew all of my husband's affairs. Herman never concealed anything from me. When he had business arrangements I knew about them. When he was paying money to a man I knew who got the money and how much was paid.

He never concealed the information from me. We didn't lead that sort of life. I have known of his relations with police officers for years. Of course, I knew that he, like every other man in the gambling business, had been paying for protection.

Families Good Friends.

I knew Lieutenant Becker and his wife very well. Becker had called often at our house. I have been up to their house many times. Why, our relations were just as friendly and pleasant as you could imagine.

Just as my husband said, I was at the Elks' ball on New Year's Eve when Lieutenant Becker told everybody around that he hadn't thought Herman was the grandest fellow in the world. We were all in a party and I suppose a good deal of champagne was drunk. I know, anyway, that Lieutenant Becker put his arm around Herman's neck and said, just as if he was making a speech, "I think more of this man than of anybody in the world. Anything he wants from me he can have." And Becker called some men and told them that Herman was his best friend and what Herman said went.

Lieutenant Becker spoke of Rose that night. He said to Herman in my presence that as long as Rose was in with us in the gambling business, everything would be lovely. We believed it. We knew how strong Rose was with Becker. If there was anybody that didn't know it, I don't know where they were. Every gambler in town knew that Jack Rose was the lieutenant's collector and that Rose and Becker were as close as brothers.

Didn't Like Rose.

Of course I knew why Rose was put in our house. Herman told me. The arrangement was a very common one. Becker knew Herman's game had been a pretty profitable one and that the money was coming in. So he declared himself in, because he wasn't overlooking any easy money. Being a policeman, he couldn't be in a gambling house all the time and see the money was split so that he couldn't miss his share, but he put Jack Rose in to see that Becker didn't get the worst of it.

Well, that was all right. Herman wouldn't have kicked about that. He was getting his money's worth in protection, he had been paying cops for years, and it was all part of the game. But he couldn't stand for Rose. There is one grasping man. He was not only taking Becker's 20 per cent. out of the game, but he wasn't forgetting Jack Rose. Why, he got so he wanted to pocket as much as Becker was getting. There was nothing doing. Business was getting bad.

The game wouldn't stand that much of a drain. Herman had been scurrying around for a bankroll before and he didn't want to go begging again if he could help it. So he did the only thing he could when the cut got too heavy—he put Rose out. "Out you go, Jack," said Herman. "I can't stand for this."

Trusted Becker.

Herman Rosenthal never believed for a minute that Becker would double-cross him. Not that he believed that any policeman was on the level. Not for a minute. He had done business with the cops too long. But he did think that Becker would be able enough and strong of a man to stand by his agreement and to back up his affectionate words at the Elks' club. Well, he didn't. He kicked to Jack Rose when Rose went to him and said that Herman had complained. The very next day the raid came off. Rose had influence enough to make Becker do what he wanted.

Lieutenant Becker came to me himself. He was full of apologies and excuses. He acted like a man who was doing a dirty piece of business against his will. He said to me right in the hallway: "Mrs. Rosenthal, you know I have to do this. I wish I could tell you how sorry I am. But I've got to do it. Waldo has ordered a raid and I've got to make good."

And then Becker said to me with a grin and in a way that made me think the raid was a joke, "Don't worry, this raid won't count. Just a little excitement and then things will be all right."

Before he left the house he called to me again and he said: "Mrs. Rosenthal, I know this is pretty hard on Herman, but he must understand my position in the matter. I haven't any choice at all. You tell Herman that he can forget the $1,500 I lent him and I will see to it that the mortgage is squared. I want to do the right thing by Herman and I wouldn't ask him to come across with the $1,500 after this raid."

GOV. HADLEY MAY REJOIN MOOSE

CHICAGO, July 24.—Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, thought lost to the Bull Moosers' herd, may return.

The "show me" governor called upon Senator Joseph M. Dixon here. In a different fashion, they began to discuss the Progressive platform. Before the conference ended, Hadley was enthusiastic and earnest.

Senator Dixon discussed the platform with other leaders. It is upon their platform, rather than the personality of their candidate that the Hadleyites will make their fight, as indicated. He said:

"That platform will be freed of the platitudes usual in the old parties.

"If we cannot offer to the people anything more than the old parties have offered, there is no excuse for Colonel Roosevelt running.

"It will be a platform that will stir the country. It will be a document full of human interest and will provide specifically for the solution of the great problems."

Senator Dixon and the Roosevelt leaders here were elated at the news of the greeting accorded Colonel Roosevelt in New York, when in a characteristically vigorous speech, the Colonel assumed personal charge of the campaign in that State.

Roosevelt went to the party headquarters in the Metropolitan Tower direct from the Outlook office. He was given an enthusiastic reception and insisted on personally meeting all the workers.

When County Chairman Cooly of Mt. Vernon came along Roosevelt threw his arm about his shoulder and said:

"I'm mighty glad to see you on this job, old man. It's fine to have men like you in a movement of this kind."

The fit of Colonel Roosevelt's speech came when he cried:

"My own judgment is that Messrs. Barnes, Penrose, Guggenheim & Co., made a good swap when they took the stolen delegates from California in place of the electoral vote of California.

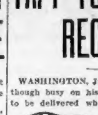
TAFT TO DROP RECIPROCITY



WASHINGTON, July 24.—President Taft, though busy on his speech of acceptance, to be delivered when he hears the committee of notification August 1, had time to see one or two Western Senators who wanted to talk about the Reciprocity act.

The Senators have wanted the act repealed. Taft has fought the repeal. But at these conferences, he intimated that he would not further oppose the repeal of the bill, since Canada refused to accept the proposed treaty. The Western Senators were jubilant.

Some of those with whom the President has talked think he may send a message to Congress on the subject, or may state his position in his speech of acceptance. The reciprocity law at present continues in effect in the United States, notwithstanding Canada's refusal to endorse it.

It is asserted among Western Senators that if any tariff measure is passed in the Senate this week an anti-trust will be incorporated for the repeal of the reciprocity law.

President Taft's board has secured the promise of one more year of life from the Senate. After a short fight that body by a vote of thirty-four to twenty authorized an expenditure of $225,000 for another year's work of investigation by the experts. Whether the appropriation is finally made will depend upon the strength with which the House resists the Senate's demands.

The Senate practically completed the sundry civil bill, but the passage of the measure was delayed until today.

President Taft's tariff [illegible] messages, and the work of some of the experts in the tariff board, were bitterly arraigned during the debate in the Senate.

Senator Overman declared President Taft's veto message on the cotton-bagging schedules was "one of the most remarkable documents ever penned, or ever sent to Congress."

WILSON SPEECH TO HIT TARIFF

SEAGIRT, N. J., July 24.—Governor Wilson put in five hours on his speech of acceptance yesterday. He resumed the work this morning, but was interrupted to sign some important state papers. Unlike some other public officials, the Governor insists on reading every word of a public document before attaching his signature to it. The papers, therefore, occupied some considerable time.

He returned immediately to the speech. The part of the discussion, it was this document, it was learned today, will be the tariff, which the Governor regards as the root of most of the evils from which the American people are suffering. Governor Wilson proposes to obtain a tariff for revenue only. The Governor regards the tariff as responsible in a large measure for the high cost of living. The tariff, it is expected, will take up at least half of the letter of acceptance. Governor Wilson is at the home of a friend about twenty-five miles from Seagirt.

Joseph H. Tumulty, the Governor's secretary, who was with him all day yesterday, returned this morning for papers. He said the Governor was progressing nicely with the speech and that he would return to Seagirt with the speech completed by Saturday.

William C. McAdoo, the tunnel builder, will be appointed vice-chairman of the Democratic campaign committee selected at Seagirt last week. He will be chosen at the next meeting of the committee in New York.

Ghost Roams in Hanover Parish House

Weird Things Happen in the Rectory Which Cannot Be Explained.

The spirited spook, or clever practical joker, or whatever it is that has stirred the townspeople of South Hanover and driven the Rev. Charles Donohue, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, from the comfortable parish house in that town, today added another to "this" already long list of ghost-like doings.

The latest thing the "ghost" has done was to send a door in the rectory dying open just after it had been locked and thekey taken out. This happened last night, following a visit to the "haunted" rectory. The incident, reported to a crowd of several hundred which had surrounded the house to await developments, sent the shivers up their spines and convinced those who had professed to be doubting Thomases that the "spirits" were really at work.

The crowd stood on the lawn and walks when the house was entered. A few minutes later the door was locked and the key removed. In a second the door flew open, as if forced by some magic hand.

Click the Only Clew.

And the only thing the spectators heard was a mysterious click.

Similar clicks are said to have accompanied every one of the "spook."

Here are some of the things that have happened in the house many of them in plain sight of one or more people, all absolutely without explanation:

A table overturned, and its legs were broken.

All the screws were torn out of an organ stool.

An alarm clock flew across the room and into the wall.

The same clock rolled down stairs, and was smashed, only the glass front remaining unbroken.

Dishes danced on the table.

Spatters of water were found about the house.

A hat rack fell and smashed.

And the only clew to the mystery is a click.

Father Donohue declares that a faint click, like the snapping of fingers, or of a tiny piece of machinery, precedes each strange occurrence. Here is the story:

The manifestations began last Saturday,

FATHER DONOHUE.

late in the afternoon. Members of the committee that has charge of the picnic to be held Saturday by the parish were seated in the upper part of the house, when knockings were heard.

That night, when Father Donohue, his housekeeper, Miss Margaret O'Connell, and her friend, Miss Frances E. Hoban, head operator at the Rockland Telephone Exchange, were in the parlor, suddenly noises were heard. A table in the kitchen was overturned and the legs broken.

In the front hall was a small cabinet organ, in front of which stood a stool. The organ remained intact, but the stool was broken, the screws loosened and thrown about the room, and one of the iron braces was bent.

Jelly Glasses Broken.

A little later in the evening strange sounds were heard in the kitchen. Miss O'Connell had made jelly and two tumblers were left on the table. When she went to investigate it was found that the table had collapsed, the jelly was thrown about the room and several articles in the kitchen had been moved.

Fr. Donohue, considerably affected, asked to have a bed made for him in the garret, and retired late, hoping to get a good night's sleep.

"I was rather anxious to get up early Sunday morning," he said. "I placed an alarm clock near the head of the bed, and it must have been about one o'clock, when I was awakened, and the clock flew to one side of the room, striking the wall.

"I arose and picked it up, placing it at the head of the bed again. It was unbroken and continued to tick. I was unable to get to sleep and in a short time I heard another crash. The clock had gone from the head of the bed, down the flight of stairs leading from the upper story. This time it was smashed to pieces, and the only thing left was the glass front."

He communicated with some of his neighbors and informed them of the condition of affairs at his home. A company of twelve volunteered to watch for more occurrences.

Dress Tree Dances.

The manifestations continued. A fardiniere in the front hall, near where the men were seated, danced from its pedestal and was smashed on the floor. A dress tree standing in the upper hall fell down the front stairs and was broken.

The occupants of the house at once left for the homes of neighbors.

Father Donohue was averse to speaking of the strange happenings. He was completely unnerved from his experiences. He said:

"I am at a loss to explain how these things happen, but they do, and I have not been able to find any one who can explain them. They happen in the daytime, as well as at night, and in the presence of many people who do not believe in anything supernatural.

Only Clew to the Mystery Is a "Click" Which Precedes Each Freak.

SPOOK ORGANIST STIRS PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, July 24.—Rev. C. A. B. Janiter, the pastor of the Holland Memorial Presbyterian Church, was awakened by Thompson Carson, an undertaker, this morning, and asked to come and hear the impromptu recital that was pealing forth to the amazement of the neighborhood. He found the street well-filled with half-dressed men, who came to listen. A squad of police entered the church, but the music stopped. They found nothing, and as they locked the doors the music started again. Another search brought no results. To-night a watch is to be kept in the church.

Find the Lady with the Green Parasol

Reward for Person Who Speaks to Her

Chance to Show Powers of Observation in a Way Well Worth While.

It's all about a lady—and a bag of gold!

The charming young woman whose picture you will find elsewhere in this paper is going to visit Revere Beach next Sunday afternoon.

The purpose of her visit and stay at the beach will be to test your powers of observation.

If a big department store were in flames the average citizen would be apt to notice it. If two big motor cars collided, smash, bang, head-on in a busy street, it would probably attract more than passing attention.

But it takes an extraordinary occurrence to make the average busy individual cognizant of passing events.

Most of us grope our way though life, intent on our petty thoughts and completely ignorant of most of the things going on around us.

GREEN PARASOL GIRL.

Girl and Parasol Will Be in Plain Sight Sunday at Shore.

In today's AMERICAN you will find printed a picture of "The Lady with the Green Parasol." At the time and place appointed she will keep an appointment with AMERICAN readers.

How many will recognize her? That remains to be seen—but, the first person, either man, woman or child who identifies her, as directed, will receive $100.00 in gold.

"The Lady with the Green Parasol" will stroll along Ocean avenue, the beach and along the Boulevard, from Condit's dance hall to Revere street, between the hours of 2 and 5 p. m., next Sunday.

The man, woman or child who identifies her will receive from her a Boston AMERICAN order for $100 in gold.

The only requirement is that the person who identifies "The Lady with the Green Parasol" have in his or her hand, in plain sight, a copy of next Sunday's AMERICAN, and shall say to her, "You are the Lady with the Green Parasol."

It should be distinctly understood that she will not hide. She will be in plain view on the streets mentioned—at the time appointed.

Make your plans now to visit Revere Beach next Sunday. If you go there and use your eyes you may return Sunday night richer by just $100 in gold.

In the meantime, examine her picture carefully—every detail of her face and figure.

Don't forget! Someone is going to get the $100 and that someone will be the first person who properly identifies "The Lady With the Green Parasol."

$10,000 BLAZE IN ARLINGTON

Fire almost destroyed Crescent Hall, a two-story building at Moore and Massachusetts avenues, Arlington Heights today. The loss will be $10,000.

The fire started from an unknown cause in the hall on the second floor, destroyed the upper part of the building and the roof and sent a column of flames and smoke leaping high into the air.

Below the hall are Sloan's grocery store, Bela's plumbing shop and a dry goods store, Ishkont. The stock in each was badly damaged by water and smoke. The building is the property of Edward N. Chase of Arlington.

BORDEN WILL CUTS OFF SON

Matthew C. D. Borden, the cotton manufacturer of New York and Fall River, who died May 27, cut off Dr. Matthew S. Borden of No. 516 West Seventy-ninth street, New York, one of his three sons, from the income of the principal of the $40,000,000 estate because Dr. Borden married in 1895 against his father's wishes. It is said that the doctor wed an actress. The doctor was provided for in the original will, but is cut off in a codicil dated May 2, 1904, about a year after the marriage. According to dispatches from New York today the codicil has just come to light through being filed for probate.

Matthew C. D. Borden was a dominant factor in the textile world. He made the powerful Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Fall River follow his control of the cloth market, cutting prices when he deemed fit and often showing that the market could be made easy and wages increased when his associated rivals were declaring this impossible. He was genuinely feared in the textile world.

THREE-MONTHS-OLD CHILD AND MOTHER AT DEER ISLAND

There is a three-months old inmate of the House of Correction at Deer Island today. The little one will remain there one month. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hosmer of Melrose street, the child's parents, were sentenced in the Municipal Criminal Court to one month each at Deer Island, the former for receiving stolen property and the latter for breaking and entering a room at No. 38 Oswego street, and the larceny of clothing.

When the two appeared in court for sentence the mother carried her infant in her arms. She said she had no friends to whom she could entrust the baby and begged the judge to permit her to take the child with her.

PLEA FOR PARK IN EAST BOSTON

At the meeting of the Boston City Council Monday, Councilor Buckley presented a petition signed by 1,200 residents of Ward 2, East Boston, asking for a waterfront playground. The petition is one of many from the people in East Boston for an open park somewhere along Border street in the Second Section.

Councilor Buckley reminded the Council that the body had passed an order on May 13 of this year asking the Board of Park Commissioners for an estimate of such a park, and though ample time had elapsed no answer had been given. He then introduced a similar order instructing the Park Board to make such an estimate at once. He said:

"It seems to me that a communication from the Council of the city of Boston merits a reply and that the Park Department ought in the meantime to have answered us. They have had ample opportunity. Practically two months have gone by and the people of East Boston would like to know just where they stand in the matter of a water front park or recreation pier. Conditions over there in warm weather such as we had last week is intolerable, and still the children of that district cannot take advantage of the wharf property because it is privately owned.

The order was passed, and it is to be hoped that this second urgent appeal of the City Council backed up by the signatures of 1,200 East Boston citizens will receive immediate consideration by the Park Board.

EX-MAYOR GREEN IS STILL GAINING

Dr. Samuel A. Green, the venerable Mayor of Boston, who was hurt last Spring in an accident on Washington street, shows a steady improvement at the private hospital in Groton to which he was taken from the Boston City Hospital.

CURED VERY SORE RASH ON BABY'S EAR

Scratched Until It Bled Then Turned into Scabs. Mother Washed It with Cuticura Soap and Applied Cuticura Ointment. In Three Weeks He Was as Well as Ever.

74 Blackstone St., Worcester, Mass.—"First a red rash came on baby's ear and it was very itchy. He would scratch it until it would bleed and then it would turn into scabs, and get very sore. He was very cross. I got some ointment; but that made it worse and made him crosser. I bought the Cuticura Soap and Ointment and washed baby with the Cuticura Soap, then put the Cuticura Ointment on. I was surprised to see him getting better after a few treatments and I kept on using them. At the end of three weeks he was perfectly cured. Now he has a beautiful clear skin and has not had any trouble since.

"When I saw how it cured baby I made my husband try it on a rash he had on his leg, which was very sore. After using the Cuticura Soap and Ointment six times it disappeared for good." (Signed) Mrs. John D. Dixon, Nov. 12, 1911.

For treating poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Ointments have been the world's favorites for more than a generation.

Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Tender-faced men should use Cuticura Soap Shaving Stick, 25c. Sample free.

RILEY'S COLUMN

CATCHER CADY, the Red Sox "find," has injected a new problem into baseball. Ryan of Cleveland attempted to steal home in the second Cleveland game. Cady ran up and intercepted the steal, interfering with the batsman. Shortstop Peckinpaugh. Umpire Hart gave the batter first base, but sent back the base runner, showing Hart to be a Solomon.

CADY'S interference kept Cleveland from scoring a run, for Ryan would almost certainly have tallied if there had been no complication. It is the first time that the question has arisen exactly this way in a big league game.

THE situation was this: Birmingham had scored, the standing was 4 to 2 in favor of Boston, Ryan was on third base and two were out. Joe Wood was "going easy," playing for the batter and not working any faster than he had to. Ryan took a long lead off third and, as Wood "wound up" slowly, dashed for the plate. He was nearly there when Wood delivered the ball.

INSTEAD of waiting for the delivery, Cady pushed his way to the plate. Just as he arrived the ball did likewise and Peckinpaugh slammed at it, as he was privileged to do. His bat, the ball and Cady's left wrist collided almost instantaneously, and an instant later Ryan slid across the plate. The ball rolled into foul territory.

UMPIRE HART sent Peckinpaugh to first base because of Cady's interference, which decision was unquestionably right. He ordered Ryan back to third base either because the ball touched Peckinpaugh when he struck at it, or because he hit it foul.

IF Cady had not run up to the plate and Peckinpaugh had not struck at it, Ryan would probably have succeeded in the steal. Peckinpaugh had the right to strike at the ball, and if it did not hit him or he did not hit it fair, Ryan had a right to score. But when a catcher interferes, the batter strikes at the ball and there is such a mix-up, the umpire has a job on his hands.

THERE was a protest from both sides, but Hart's decision stood. And it was right. The point is this: Cady's interference most likely kept Ryan from scoring. It kept Peckinpaugh from hitting the ball squarely, which might have been fair. On the other hand, Peckinpaugh knew that the steal was coming and, according to custom, struck at the ball as much to interfere with Cady's free catch as to try to hit fairly and pull off a "squeeze play." He intended to interfere with Cady, as Cady interfered with him, but Cady was there first, and Hart's decision was wise.

CADY courage to jeopardize his knuckles and his neck by rushing up to the plate. It is another development of Cady as a catcher. He'll do.

WOOD hit the next man up, filling the bases, but Jackson grounded to Gardner, who tagged third, forcing Peckinpaugh, and Ryan was left at third base.

WOOD sized up Jackson's attempt to steal in the third and pitched a fast one outside of the plate, so that Cady had ample time to throw, but Wagner had to make one of his famous one-hand catches to retire the runner.

JAKE STAHL'S glove seemed to have a set of springs in it in the eighth inning. Griggs, the first man up, hit to Wagner, who threw accurately, but the ball bounded out of Jake's hands as if it had struck a rubber cushion.

ALTHOUGH the score was 6 to 2 against them, the "Naps" made a threat in the ninth. After Meixel, batting for O'Neil, had died, Easterly, standing in Pitcher Kahler's shoes, singled through the box. Then Wood threw out Peckinpaugh. Easterly moving to second. Olson slammed one at Gardner, who took it but threw carelessly to Stahl—something Larry does so rarely that it is worthy of mention that it happened—and Easterly scored. Olson went to second. Jackson then hit a sharp one to Wagner, and "Heinie" raged low to Stahl, but this time Jake made one of the neatest of pick-ups and it was all over.

ANYWAY, the Red Sox had the game in the hollow of their hands after Speaker put Blanding out of business in the sixth. With Yerkes on in that inning, Gardner and Stahl delivered three baggers, scoring two runs and that settled things. Hooper and Lewis singled, Cady and Yerkes doubled and Speaker walked in the next session, adding two more to the tally.

THIS same Blanding "pitched his head off" trying to down the Sox and while the American League leaders are now playing the game so confidently and their pitchers are so reliable that they seem to have almost a sure thing in every game they tackle, it was that old drive by Tris Speaker that actually put Blanding out of business and won the ball game.

SPEAKER did not deliver a safe hit during the game, Blanding throwing him out three times, and he walked the fourth. But in the sixth, with the score 2 to 1 in our favor, Cleveland, having six hits and Boston having touched Blanding for only three, Speaker hit one at the Cleveland pitcher so terrifically that he could not dodge. He put up his hands for self-preservation. The drive nearly knocked him down. Yerkes, who was on first, moved up a base on the play, but Blanding recovered in time to throw out Speaker. After that, though, the muscles of his hands were numb and in that inning and the next Boston counted their six additional hits, two of them triples and two doubles, scoring four runs and settling the contest.

WHILE Joe Wood was taking things easy with the "Naps" and the Sox would probably have won anyway, it was Speaker's slam at Blanding that put the game on ice. Wherefore, a man can bat out a baseball game without making a safe hit.

THE Tigers used to be our enemies. Now they're our friends. The Browns were once our hoodoos. Now they're our bat-boys. The Browns tied the persistent Senators Saturday and let us gain a half game on Washington, so we led them seven full games Sunday morning. Yesterday the Tigers tore off a ball game from the Senators and we lead them eight games now, instead of seven. Griffith's men have won consistently when the Red Sox have won, and lost consistently when the Red Sox have lost, so often that there has been a question raised in Baribou, Wis., as to which is the better team of the two. The question arose from the fact that Griffith's team still has an edge of one game on the Red Sox, and no other team in the league has even that slight advantage.

THE Tigers fought hard enough in Boston, but we beat them four out of five. They didn't fight any harder in Philadelphia, but they took the teeth out of Connie Mack's elephant. Of course, nobody expected them to beat Walter Johnson Monday, and it looked like they would not take one from the Senators yesterday, but they finally did, and it was a genuine old-fashioned Tiger battle. First it was 1-0 Washington, then 3-1 Detroit, then 6-3 Washington, next 4-3 Detroit. Then the Senators led the Tigers, 7 to 5, and finally Detroit came around in the ninth and, with seven runs, won the ball game.

ACCORDING to the stories from Philadelphia, Rixey was offered even more than $900 a month to join the White Sox or the Senators. That price, paid for the full season, would give him $5,400 a year, which is more than all but perhaps half a dozen pitchers receive. Is Rixey's case it would amount to $3,600 for four months. It is possible that he is paid that sum, but more likely that he receives about $3,000 for the season—meaning the time since he received his diploma.

PROBABLY Rixey is the highest priced collegian on record for his first season out—figuring it by the month. He's worth the money.

PILGRIMS TO DO SOME PIRATING

PITTSBURGH, July 24.—While the Boston Pilgrims are hopeful of winning today's game, they are positive that they will at least break the long row of goose eggs they have encountered since entering this city. For eighteen innings of play, now, the Boston tailenders have failed to send a man across home plate, which is a disgrace even for a tail end team.

Manager Kling had his men out on the field extra early today to give them some much needed and useful work in running the bases. It is a proven fact that the Pilgrims can waste more hits than any two teams in the league.

For two days now, a battle has been promised between Hub Perdue and Marty O'Toole and all signs point to that wonderful sight taking place today. Perdue has always been troublesome to the locals and it will not be very surprising if he should manage to hang up a win over the Pirates.

Yesterday's battle was close enough and was not decided until the ninth inning. Then the lone run of the game was made on Wilson's double and Wagner's single.

Hess and Hendrix were the opposing mound artists, with Hendrix having the best of the argument. He allowed seven scattered hits, gave one base on balls and fanned nine batsmen. Hess pitched great ball and if his teammates had been there with the wallop he would have been returned the winner.

Boston had four different chances to win the game. In two innings they had two men on bases, one on second and the other on first, with none out, but they were unable to get a run across the pan.

Boston outpaced the Pirates in the field. McDonald and Jackson were the stars in this respect. McDonald got in front of everything that came his way and in only one instance did he fail to throw his man out at first. Jackson saved the game a number of times by great catches in left field. It did not matter whether the ball was over his head or whether it was just over the infield, he got them all.

Before the contest started Manager Clarke ordered his men to go out and steal home, but after four were turned back by Huston's perfect throwing Clarke changed his orders.

In the fourth inning Boston almost scored a run, Sweeney connected with one off Hendrix's slow ones for a single to centre, after Campbell had fouled out. Jackson died on Wilson. Sweeney then gave the hit and run signal and started to second before Hendrix delivered the ball. Titus was on the job and singled to right. Sweeney was several feet from second when Titus connected and kept on going past third for home. He dove into the plate, but Umpire Johnstone called him out, the ball being relayed from Mowrey to Wagner to Gibson. The play was close.

RED SOX AFTER THIRD STRAIGHT

With two games in their net, the Red Sox will go after the Naps all the harder this afternoon, to capture the third straight in the series. Either Charley Hall or Hugh Bedient will be Manager Stahl's choice to do the mound work.

A warm battle is expected, for Manager Davis is disgusted with the manner his pets are being treated and will send his star flinger, Vean Gregg, out to do battle in the hope of stopping their downward slide.

But the Red Sox do not fear left-handers this year, and Mr. Gregg is apt to suffer the same treatment that has been accorded to other portsided twirlers so far.

Yesterday's game was an unusual one, in fact, Joe Wood and some of the other stars were a little bit off form. The result was that the game was in doubt at several periods and a little luck would have put the game on ice for the Naps.

There was some clever playing by Peckinpaugh at short. Wagner, Gardner and Stahl all did some noteworthy fielding. And Cady caught a fine and difficult game, Wood being fast and off the mark more than usual. There was a strong wind blowing, which affected the fielding considerably.

Blanding pitched with excellent judgment and fielded his position in superb style, as did Wood.

The Boston men were keeping a close tab on the scoreboard, showing the result of the game at Washington, and left the grounds with the Senators in the lead. So it was not until after returning home that they learned the Tigers had stuck their fangs into the fighting Senators and put Boston eight games to the good.

Diamond Gossip

Today and tomorrow and then the Red Sox get away.

Nice friendly little turn the Tigers pulled off by beating those pesky Senators.

According to word from the South, the Yankees may get Infielder Bates, a promising youngster now playing with Newport News. A number of clubs are said to be on his trail eager to give him a trial in the big leagues.

Rock Weaver is playing a fine game at short for the Windy City crew. He made any number of brilliant plays yesterday, handling six chances in perfect fashion.

Ping Bodie evidently is over his slump which started in this city when he fanned with the bases filled. The great Yonker smasher peeled off three safe clouts in four times up, but not one of his bingles was of value to his team, coming at inopportune times.

Bert Daniels is having a great slump in hitting. Early in the season he was going along at a .500 clip, but is now having great difficulty in hanging on the mark.

Jack Enz, who has been setting the Texas League on fire with his playing at second for the Dallas team, may become a Yanker in the near future, according to word from the Lone Star State. It is said the Dallas manager has offered him to the Yanks for cash.

The White Sox have won only four games since beginning their invasion of the East, taking one in each city. They lost three to the Mackmen, two to the Nationals and four to the Red Sox.

With eight victories and eight defeats the Giants are now even on their Western trip. They have won six of the last seven.

M'LOUGHLIN TO MEET LARNED

Maurice E. McLoughlin, the California tennis crack, will meet E. P. Larned in the challenge round, at Longwood this afternoon. The Wetzerner's win over W. J. Clothier in the final round yesterday, gave him the opportunity to meet the present holder of the cup, and a great duel is expected.

The blonde youth from San Francisco had things all his own way yesterday and won with comparative ease over his more experienced opponent in three straight sets, 7—5, 8—6, 6—4.

McLoughlin had almost everything that is in the catalogue as regards placing shots, and fooled Clothier time and again on returns.

Clothier attempted to outguess his opponent by standing way back of the last line to receive the service, but McLoughlin drew him up on shots that barely skimmed the net, and then passed him time and again.

MIKE GIBBONS RING SUCCESS

One year ago Mike Gibbons was working for $2.50 a day in the Great Northern shops and was absolutely penniless, so to speak. He had been working for four years at the rimsmiths' trade, and in his own little way was making a success—that is, a living for himself, wife and baby. Today the same Mike Gibbons has $30,000 to show for nine months' work in the ring. Last October, in company with his manager, Eddie Reddy, Gibbons left for New York to attempt to force an entrance into the Eastern right game. Before leaving St. Paul, the Gibbons-Reddy company took a careful inventory of their worldly goods, and found that by living moderately they could "break" into the Gotham town, take a chance at the ring game in the big city, and, if the worst came to the worst, have enough of the filthy lucre to pay their fares back to St. Paul.

Prior to the invasion of the East, Gibbons had fought a few alleged important battles. He had won a hundred or two dollars for going through a ten-round pantomime with Jimmy Clabby at Milwaukee and also had drawn down the princely sum of $45 for disfiguring the physiognomy of one "Kid" Breed of New York. Later he won a fifteen-round slashing battle with Clabby at Winnipeg, and it was the happy result of this match, together with the sight of the few bills gathered in on the affair that brought about the thought of Gotham and real money. It was a desperate chance in the minds of the two boys, but was the one and only opportunity to settle for once or all that most important question, viz.: Was Mike Gibbons to continue laboring for $2.50 a day or was he to attain that height of which he had so often allowed himself to dream? The Eastern invasion proved a big success, thanks to the unifying determination of Manager Reddy. The first fight was staged and brought about a Gibbons victory. Seeing something out of the ordinary run of fighters in Gibbons, the promoters offered Reddy other matches. Again Gibbons won, and then the fighting world began to ask, who is this Gibbons? The St. Paul lad has beaten them all and today he is considered the best 158-pounder in the world. His name has been ushered into the official stab in the boxers' hall of fame and the city of St. Paul has been well advertised as a result of his achievement.

Free Tickets to Sox-Naps Game

2 More Days to Cheer Speed Boys

The Red Sox will leave for the West after tomorrow's game with the Cleveland Naps. They will not return to Fenway Park until August 14. Every baseball "fan" in New England is desirous of seeing Jake Stahl's crew of pennant chasers in action before they leave for the West.

The AMERICAN today makes a grand gift to the baseball lovers. Three hundred tickets to the Red Sox games are given away free. These tickets are good at either today's or tomorrow's game.

Hundreds of "fans" have enjoyed the Red Sox games during the past few weeks at the expense of the AMERICAN. If you have a baseball coupon with a number corresponding to one of the numbers printed today, present the coupon at the Boston AMERICAN Promotion Department, No. 5 Winthrop square and you will be given a free grandstand ticket for either today's or tomorrow's Red Sox game.

PLAN FOR BIG ATHLETIC MEET

The St. Joseph Total Abstinence Society is planning for its annual athletic carnival, which will be held at the Locust street grounds, South Boston, on Saturday afternoon, August 10. All of the leading New England athletes will be seen in action. There will also be representatives from the New York athletic clubs.

The Elks will hold their athletic carnival on the previous day. The committee in charge of the St. Joseph's field day is planning to have the athletes who compete in the Elks games also compete in their meet.

The majority of the members of the victorious American track and field team which swept all before it in the Olympic games at Stockholm will soon arrive in this country. Many of these sturdy athletes will compete for the high honors in the various events at both sets of games.

The following handicap events have been arranged by the committee in charge of the St. Joseph's field day: One hundred yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, five-mile run, running high jump, running broad jump and the running hop, step and jump. Several special events will also be arranged.

British Champ Goes Back Home

Wells Real 'Hope' of Ring Fans

By JACK CONWAY.

BOMBARDIER WELLS, heavyweight champion of England, is now on the high seas bound for England. The British title holder quit New York before dawn this morning. Wells has been in this country for several months, and, although he has failed to startle Eastern fight "fans" by his work in the ring, he has made a small sized army of friends.

Wells' first bout in this country was against Al Palzer. Palzer has been boxing as a professional for a year. He is big, strong and just bubbling over with ambition. It is claimed that Wells was taken suddenly ill a few days before his contest with Palzer but that he refused to call off the bout, as he did not want American lovers of the manly art to get an idea that he was afraid of the powerful Iowa battler.

The result of the Wells-Palzer bout is now history. The Englishman realized that he had to knock Al out in a couple of rounds or he himself would be doomed to defeat, as he was in no condition to fight. He started after Palzer in the opening round and riddled him with short, snappy rights and lefts which forced Palzer to retreat. Wells continued his sterling work in the second round and scored two clean knockdowns.

He was fighting beyond his speed, however, and was unable to stand the gaff when Palzer began to land blows to the body. The result was that he was knocked out in the third round.

WHEN the majority of mitt wielders are defeated, they make the rounds of the different newspaper offices and frame up excuses telling why they lost. Of course, the fight critics are on to their game, but they usually listen in silence. Wells, however, did not follow this old precedent. He complained at his training quarters and continued to work out daily after he had recovered from the effects of his bout with Palzer.

The Britton was then signed up to meet Tom Kennedy and he won. He did more than this. He knocked Kennedy out in eight rounds. And now Bombadier has left for home, for England where he is sure to receive a rousing welcome from his countrymen.

Wells is one of the cleverest white heavyweights that has visited these shores in years. He is a past master, of the art of self-defence. If Wells was as strong as Palzer, he, perhaps, would be able to defeat Johnson. Let us hope that he will build up while on the other side of the big pond.

Besides being a clever boxer, Wells is a perfect gentleman. He looks more like a college student than a boxer. Wells will never become a champion unless he gets stronger, but even if he fails to win the title he will still remain the many friends that he has won by his clean living and true sportsmanship.

I RECEIVED the following letter in my mail today:

"I am willing to meet any 8-weight or 9-weight in New England. I have been doing a lot of fighting lately and believe that I am entitled to recognition."

(signed) "SPIDER" MURPHY.

JOE JEANETTE is able to hold his own with the best of them in a long fight. Langford is Jeanette's master up to fifteen rounds but there are many who believe that the Hoboken black would be able to defeat Langford, McVey and even Johnson in a finish fight. He is as game as they make them and has a habit of holding up after he has been sent to the canvas.

While the leading negro battlers are fighting it out among themselves in far away Australia, our poor little white "bones" will be able to sleep in comfort.

TIME TO ENTER VOTE CONTEST

The best baseball town in the world is about to come into its own.

All signs seem to point to our own Red Sox as the 1912 American League leaders. Accidents sometime happen, but it will have to be an extraordinary setback to keep the Speed Boys from getting this year's pennant.

Of course, we hope the Red Sox win for the sake of the twenty New England fans who are to be the AMERICAN'S guests at the World's Series games, but no matter who wins or where the teams are located, twenty fans will see the 1912 World's Championship games, and all at the expense of the AMERICAN.

Everyone in New England is invited to enter the AMERICAN'S Baseball Contest for the twenty Free trips. The contest has just started so that a start now means a start with the "early-birds."

Send in that nomination blank today. You'll find it elsewhere in this paper. It gives you a credit of 600 votes and then "it's up to you" whether or not you see the 1912 championship games.

Kitty Hawk II. Holds Hydroplane Title

DETROIT, July 24.—Kitty Hawk II. retained her title of 26-foot hydroplane champion by defeating Baby Reliance in the eight-mile race of the Cadillac motorboat regatta on the Detroit River. Baby Reliance finished only the first heat, withdrawing because of carburetor trouble. Thelma IV., the only other starter, outstayed no competition for the speedy Kitty Hawk. The course was laid around Belle Isle.

The winner's time in the first heat was 12 minutes 12 seconds. With no occasion for speed in the next heat, the champion took 17 minutes 5 seconds to cover the course.

Neptune, the 20-foot hydroplane that was expected to make better than 40 an hour, ran into shallow water, lost propeller and cut out. She had no competition in her class. She probably will be repaired in time for the championship races on Thursday.

CUBS LET MARONEY GO; SIGN DOWNEY

CHICAGO, July 24.—President Murphy has announced he has given Pitcher Maroney of the Chicago National League team his unconditional release. He also declared he had refused to waive on Infielder Downey of the Philadelphia National League team, and that Downey would report to the Chicago team today.

Rubinstein Still in Lead in Chess Meet

BRESLAU, July 24.—A. K. Rubinstein, the Russian champion, maintained his lead in the international chess masters' tournament here by drawing his game against Carl Schlechter. The latter was the first to break the Russian's string of victories. Rubinstein is closely followed by F. J. Marshall, the United States champion, who disposed of Lowitzky.

Carls, who lost to Lowitzky, dropped to a level with Coon, Duras, Schlechter, Tarrasch and Teichmann at two and one-half points each. While Cohn's game with Prezepiorka was not finished, Duras drew against Mieses. Tarrasch won from the Englishman, Burn, and Teichmann divided the honors with Spielmann. In the other games played here with Bulla and Breyer and Treybal adjourned.

After four rounds the standing of the competitors was as follows:

	Won	Lost		Won	Lost
Rubenstein	3½	0½	Tenbal	½	3½
Marshall	3	1	Baron	1½	2½
Lowitzky	3	1	Lowitzky	1½	2½
Cohn	2½	1½	Spielmann	1½	2½
Duras	2½	1½	Bulla	1½	2½
Coon	2½	1½	Breyer	1½	2½
Schlechter	2½	1½	Mieses	1	3
Tarrasch	2½	1½	Burn	1	3
Teichmann	2½	1½	Przeziorka	0	3½

RACE TO DEFEND AMERICA.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The first of a series of five races between the sloops Michigan and the Minnesota will be sailed tomorrow for the purpose of deciding the skipper and crew which will defend American honors in the international yacht race with the Canadian boat Patricia during the August regatta. Fred A. Price will have charge of the Michigan in the initial race, and Richard Wilcox will sail the Minnesota on each day. The sailor making the best showing to have the honor of competing with the Patricia.

Plan City Carnival for Young Swimmers

Swimming features in the Summer program of the Municipal Athletic Association, in co-operation with the City Bath Department, are now under way. Efficiency tests are being held each Wednesday and Saturday until August 31 at all beaches of the department. The tests comprise events in swimming, diving and life saving.

In addition, the following events, for which prizes will be awarded, are open to competitors on Saturday, August 3, at L. street bath, South Boston: Tennis tourney, and on Saturday, August 17, at Dewey, McKenzie and North End park beaches:

Boys—10 to 12 years—50-yard dash, diving for form. 12 to 15 years—50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, diving for form. 15 to 18 years—100 yards, 440 yards, diving for form, competition in life-saving.

Girls—10 to 12 years—25-yard dash, diving for form. 12 to 15 years—25-yard dash, 50-yard dash, diving for form. 15 to 18 years—50 yards, 100 yards, diving for form, competition in life saving.

The first three place winners in each event in the preliminary meets will compete in a final meet in Charles River Basin, on Saturday, August 24, at 3 p.m.

Seven Fast Races At Franklin Field

Despite there being a number of the horses entered on other tracks throughout the New England circuit, by the members of the Dorchester Driving Club, there will be seven fast and interesting races on the Franklin Field Speedway Saturday afternoon.

The feature trotting event will see Nut Boy against Earl King, and P. O'Hearn, driver of the former, will be given the closest race of his career by Hollis Gallup. Charley King and C. E. R. will be seen in the fast pacing event.

The entries:

CLASS A, PACE—Charley King, br. g., (A. T. Cobenbody); C. E. R., b. g., (C. F. Powers); CLASS B, TROT—Quincy Adams Sawyer, b. g., (H. P. Gallup); Nut Boy, b. g., (P. O'Hearn).

CLASS C, PACE—Jessie Direct, b. m., (S. M. Warren); Minnie, b. m., (D. Reynolds).

CLASS D, TROT—Quincy Adams Sawyer, b. g., (H. P. Gallup); Earl K., b. s., (H. J. Mieclow).

CLASS E, TROT—Queen of Rebels, b. m., (H. J. Mieclow); John Hall, b. g., (William Hogan).

CLASS F, MIXED—Direct Direct, b. m., (S. M. Warren); Rebel Boy, b. g., (H. P. Gallup).

CLASS G, TROT—Willy S., b. g., (J. E. Noble); Gertie M., br. m., (J. J. Dougherty).

American Athletes Win Meet in France

RHEIMS, France, July 24.—Several of the members of the American Olympic team took part in the games here in competition with the best of the French athletes. The Americans carried off the honors.

Leo Goehring, Mohawk A. C., won the standing high jump, clearing the bar at 5 feet 5 inches.

David S. Caldwell, Massachusetts Agricultural College, won the 110-metre run in 1 minute 57 1-5 seconds.

James Thorpe, Carlisle Indian School, captured the 110-metre hurdles race in 15 4-5 seconds.

The 200-metre flat went to Alvah T. Meyer, Irish-American A. C., in 22 2-5 seconds, while E. R. Erickson, Mott Haven A. C., took the running high jump with 6 feet 1¾ inch.

Attell and Murphy Bout Not Called Off

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Abe Attell and Harlem Tommy Murphy will fight twenty rounds at Promoter James W. Coffroth's Eighth and Howard street arena August 3. This announcement was made by Promoter Coffroth today following a conference with Attell.

Several days ago the former featherweight champion startled followers of the boxing game by declaring he had cast off his manager, Billy Nolan, and would not affiliate any engagements made by the veteran trainer-manager.

"KITTY" BRANSFIELD IS NOW A MANAGER

MONTREAL, July 24.—The directors of the Montreal Baseball Club in the International League have appointed "Kitty" Bransfield as manager of the Royals, to succeed Billy Lush. Bransfield has been associated at different times as first baseman with Pittsburgh and the Philadelphia Nationals. Joe Yeager is acting temporarily.

DISMISS CLAIM OF THE CUBS.

CINCINNATI, July 24.—The National Baseball Commission decided that if the Chicago Nationals suffered any damage through the loss of Player Agler during the two months he was with the Jersey City Club, of the International League, under a cloud of title, it must share the responsibility, and, therefore, dismissed the claim.

Big Reception for Paterson Athletes

PATERSON, N. J., does not intend to sit idly by while New York welcomes the returning Olympic field and track heroes next week. The Jersey city has planned a monster reception of its own for the boys of that town who distinguished themselves at Stockholm.

Paterson has some reason to feel elated, for Strobino, Scott and Hollowell are all members of the South Paterson A. C. "Gal" Strobino, who finished third in the Olympic Marathon, is the most popular hero of Paterson for many a year.

According to present plans a monster reception will be tendered the three athletes and their trainer next Tuesday. A reception committee will meet the men in New York when they disembark and accompany them by train to Paterson. There all the athletic clubs of the city and many civic bodies will participate in an automobile parade through the principal streets.

At the conclusion of the parade a civic dinner will be given in a hall large enough to accommodate all the patriotism of the town. Mayor McBride will then turn over to the boys the keys of the city.

Al Orth to Umpire in National League

NEW YORK, July 24.—The National League, through President Lynch, has purchased the release of Umpire Al Orth from the Virginia League. Orth's work as an umpire in the Virginia League has been highly praised by major league scouts. The new umpire will probably report to President Lynch this week and will be given an early opportunity to show his worth.

Orth's last major league engagement was as pitcher of the New York American club.

THE "IRON MAN" IS AGAIN ON THE JOB

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 24.—"Iron Man" McGinnity, pitching for the Newark International League team, won both games of a double-header with Rochester and pulled the Rochesters out of first place, a position they had held since May 26. After losing Rochester out by a run in the first game, 4 to 3, Newark won the second game with seven tallies, while McGinnity did not permit a local player

How to Build a Fortune

No. 2—WORK AND DESIRES

By THOMAS TAPPER

NO one can build a fortune who does not work. A man may have a fortune left to him by somebody who worked for it, but that, unfortunately, does not require the recipient to get to work. Some men have received a fortune and have straightway gone to work to increase it and use it wisely. Such men are exceptions.

When you think it over carefully you will realize that when you are paid money for your work, you receive it for the strength and quality of mind and body that you put into work. This means that strength goes out and money comes in. This, in turn, means that money is your strength in another form.

Now, the first thing you should determine to do concerning the money your strength earns for you is to respect it. A man who earns thirty dollars by the use of the best part of his mind and blows it in foolishly by the use of the worst part of his mind fails to respect the money, and he likewise fails to respect himself.

The first steps in fortune building, then, are:

1. Earn the money by giving honest labor for it.

2. Do not forget that the money you earn is honest labor in another form.

Let us suppose you have money when you have earned, and that you have given good value for it.

What Are You to Do?

The next question is: What are you going to do with it?

Nearly every one arises at this point, and answers: "Spend it!"

It certainly must be spent, for money stored away under a brick or in an old stocking is out of the game. It is concealed and inactive. It is not working. The prime quality of money is motion. Its power to work comes from keeping it moving.

So you must certainly spend the money. But how?

There are four things to be purchased with money every time you get your pay envelope. If these four things always get first consideration, you will be started right toward success in the affairs of fortune. These four things are:

1. Shelter.
2. Clothing.
3. Food.
4. Protection for the future.

We must all have a place to sleep and a place to go when the weather is inclement. We must be clothed. We must eat. We must be prepared to care for ourselves in the future when old age limits our earning capacity, for we need then as much, or more, than we need in youth, shelter, clothing, and food.

Nearly every one manages to get the first three. The vast majority of people rarely think of the fourth distant protection until it is too late. It is just as necessary, however, as the others, and can be enjoyed in the future it must be obtained in the present.

You may think that the purchase of these four things makes a severe strain on a small pay envelope. It does, but it is so severe that only a thinking man can make a go of it. And even he can make a go of it only by hard thinking.

Work Out a Schedule

What he must do is to work out a schedule that will allow for shelter, clothing, food and the incidentals, and still leave a margin to be put aside for future protection.

The exclamation from a millhop throats is: "It can't be done!"

And the reply to that is: It is being done every day. Those who succeed in accomplishing this apparently impossible thing, work according to a system. The name of the system is apportionment. This is a hard word to say, but easy to get acquainted.

Apportionment means being boss of your own treasury. You figure out just what you can pay for shelter, clothing, food, and the little odds and ends, and you keep on figuring at that until you find that every week's pay has been so directed that you can meet these expenses and have a little left over. The amount left over may be a nickel or a dime, or a quarter, or a dollar bill. Don't despise any one of these sums.

You have paid your bills and you have a margin. You have succeeded in doing this by using your thought. Put the margin in the savings bank and keep your thought at work, thought at work pays big interest. Its first great dividend comes to you in the form of benefits from self-control, or self-government, about which the next article treats.

Married Life the Third Year

No. 60—Warren Airs His Knowledge of London Restaurants and Helen Is Duly Impressed

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

"OH, Warren, I'm sure it wouldn't hurt me! I've been in four days now—and I've been so careful. Surely, I can go out this evening."

"Um—I don't know about that. If you have a relapse—you know what that'll mean. How does your throat feel now?"

"It's been so much better today. And if we come back right after dinner—that COULDN'T hurt me."

"All right. Get on your things. But mind now, wrap that throat up good."

Half an hour later, when they reached the street, Helen took his arm with an eager:

"Oh, dear, it seems so good to be out again!"

"Of course, I does. But we don't want to overdo it." He was frowningly studying the signs on the passing busses, and now he waved his cane at one and hurried Helen toward it.

"Oh, dear, can't we go to the top?" as he put her inside.

"Not with that throat. I told you we weren't going to take any chances. And don't talk—keep your mouth closed. You want to keep out this night air."

Warren's Treat

"You haven't told me yet where we're going," ventured Helen after a few blocks of obedient silence.

"Wait and see how you like it. It isn't a smart restaurant, but you can get as good food there as anywhere in London. Come, here's where we get off."

It was a most pretentious looking place. At the entrance stood two doormen splendid in their plum-colored, brass-buttoned uniforms.

They entered a foyer elaborately decorated with palms and statues. Warren led the way up the broad stairway with its velvet-colored balustrade to a balcony filled with tables.

The head waiter seated them at a table by the railing, which gave them a sweeping view of the large dining hall below.

"Why, Warren, I thought you said this wasn't a smart restaurant."

"It isn't. We'd had to dress if it had been."

"But it's so elaborate and so beautifully decorated. And very impressive, too—look at those marble columns."

"Yes, that's a curious thing about London. A restaurant is either smart or it isn't. It's not a question of appointments. Lavish expenditure never gives a restaurant prestige here—that depends entirely upon its patronage. The smart people don't come here—that's all. So you get good food and good service at a moderate price."

"Moderate! Why this looks like a very expensive place."

"Well, it isn't. There," throwing her a menu the waiter had just brought, "There's a dinner for three and six that you couldn't get in America for twice that."

"Three and six!" in amazement. "Why that isn't ninety cents."

"Eighty-seven and a half."

"You don't mean we can get this seven-course dinner here for that?"

"And a ripping good one, too."

Here the waiter placed before them a large flat silver dish, divided into eight partitions and holding various hors d'oeuvres—anchovies, radishes, olives sardines, salamis and several mixed relishes which were new to Helen.

"They serve these over here instead of oysters," commented Warren, as he helped Helen to a tiny portion of each.

"Oh, how delicious and how interesting! What's this, dear? These little green things?"

"I forgot what they call those."

"Consomme or cream of asparagus, sir?" asked the waiter.

They gave the soup and the fish and the entree order. Then Warren called for a wine list.

"What a long wine list!" exclaimed Helen. "Why, there's pages of it."

More Surprises

"Huh, they know something about wine in this country. These are all special vintages, and back here are the ordinary brands. You can get good wine cheap—about half of what we have to pay for it. And you can get vintages up to any price. Let's see—what's the matter of that No. 82 will be pretty fair. That's only two shillings. You'd pay a dollar and a quarter at home for the same brand."

Here the orchestra at the end of the great dining hall below broke into a familiar American ragtime air. It was a large orchestra—nine men besides the leader. They wore the same plum-colored uniforms as did all the waiters and attendants. To Helen that cheap American tune seemed curiously out of place in this elaborate dining hall.

"Oh, Warren, what ARE these?" as the waiter brought on a large plate of tiny fish, smaller than sardines and fried so dry and crisp that there was not a grease mark on the white paper doily on which they rested.

"That's whitebait. Something you can't get at home, and it's mighty fine, too. No, you eat the whole thing," as Helen with her fork carefully cut off a tiny head. "They're too small to separate. How about your throat Are they too crisp for you?"

"Oh, no—no, they're delicious. But, dear, CAN'T I have some ice? I simply can't drink this warm water, and I'm almost choked."

Warren frowned. "Thought you were going to do without ice over here. You know it's devilish hard to get."

The attentive English waiter seeing something was wanted came up.

"Anything you'd like, sir?"

"Yes, bring this lady some ice—cracked ice in a bowl."

When the ice came Helen greedily filled her water glass and also put a piece in her claret.

Respect for Wine

"Don't spoil your claret that way!" scolded Warren. "Had enough to do that at home. They treat wine with respect in this country—that's why they have these long vintage lists. In America, when a man wants to spread himself, he orders champagne—the only thing he knows. But here they have vintage claret, burgundies and moselles—finer than any champagne. Now, for Heaven's sake don't disgrace me when we go to a smart place by putting ice in your claret."

"But if one really likes ice in claret," protested Helen, "I don't see why they shouldn't put it in."

"Because it spoils the flavor and shows you don't know anything about wines. But, of course, you're so obstinate, you'd"——

"Oh, Warren, look—look at that party down there," interrupted Helen, adroitly changing the subject. "They're French, aren't they?"

"French or Spaniards. Everybody comes here. It's one of the popular places."

"But I don't see how they keep it up on these prices. Think of the restaurants that full at home—and the prices they charge!"

"Well, rent's cheaper here, and so is service. They pay these waiters about half or what they get in America. Nothing so cheap in England as labor. That accounts for all the socialism here."

"But even with the cheaper rent and labor, still they have to pay for the food and all these appointments," persisted Helen.

"Well, they have a big luncheon, tea and supper trade. In London people eat all the time. If you came here at any hour you'd find some of the tables filled. Isn't this a good chicken?"

Helen murmured her appreciation as she nibbled one of the bones.

"That's because it's fresh. They don't refrigerate anything in England."

All Food Fresh

"They don't. Why?" looking up in amusement.

"Because they haven't any refrigerating plants. That's why all the food you get here is so fresh. Our fish and chicken don't taste like this. It's been frozen stiff and may be any old age."

There was nothing that so pleased Warren as to be able to air his knowledge of things in general. Invariably it put him in a good humor. Helen knew this, and when he was irritable one of her most subtle defences was to ask him some question that might get him started on "informing" her.

And so now because Warren had an opportunity to tell her so much about English cuisine and ex tomis the dinner was a very pleasant one.

As they left Helen again broke into enthusiastic praise of the restaurant—the appointments, the food and service and the moderate prices.

"Oh, Warren, do let's come here again —it's such an exceptional place."

"Lots of others just as good. London's full of them—if you know the ropes. We'll make it a point to eat at a different joint every night."

"Oh, you DO know London so well," admiringly. "It's just as though you'd always lived here."

"Yes, I know a thing or two about this town. It's just six years since I was here, but guess you won't need any guide book while I'm along—eh?"

"Oh, no, dear—you're WONDERFUL!"

A Great Effort

The school inspector, desirous of testing the powers of composition existing in a class of eight-year-old boys, requested that a sentence should be written to contain the three words, "bees," "boys" and "bear."

A small boy laboriously concocted the following sentence: "Boys bees bear when they go in swimming."

"WHAT on earth did you say?"

"As soon as I got her in the box at the other end, I said, 'Is that you, Gwen?' 'Yes' said she. 'Well,' said I, 'I guess you know who's talking?' 'Quite well,' said she. 'Now,' said I, 'I've just been telling Mr. Bruce I wanted to marry you, and that you wouldn't even discuss the proposition. He said you probably wished me to know the whole story of Sir Charles Dyke, but felt kinder shy of telling him yourself. He will get it off his chest if you give him permission, and then I can come along in a hansom and fix things. What do you say?' There was no answer, so I shouted 'Are you there?' and she said 'Yes,' faint-like. 'Don't let me hurry you,' said I, 'but if you agree straightaway, I can catch Bruce at home, for I've just left him.' With that she said, 'Very well, you can see Mr. Bruce.' And here I am."

Detaining Him

"Having accomplished the whole thing satisfactorily."

"As how?"

"Don't you see you have proposed to the lady and practically been accepted?"

"Gehosh! It does look something like it. Say, I'm off! This story of yours will keep until tomorrow."

He would have gone, but Bruce jumped after him.

"Not so fast, Mr. Corbett. You must not sail into the Savoy flying a false flag. Kindly oblige me with your attention for the next half-hour."

With that, he unlocked his safe and took from its recesses Sir Charles Dyke's "confession." He read the whole of its opening passages, explaining the relations between Mrs. Hillmer and her unfortunate but abiding friend.

The straightforward, honest sentences sounded strangely familiar at this distance of time. Bruce was glad of the opportunity of reading them aloud. It seemed a fitting thing that this testimony should come, as it were, from the tomb.

Corbett listened intently to the recital and to the barrister's summary of the events that followed.

"Some chap!" he said, when the sad tale had ended. "I hope you shook hands with him as he asked you to do?"

"I did. Would that my grasp had the power to reassure him of my heartfelt sympathy."

For a little while they were silent.

"So," said Corbett, at last, "Gwen thought I would make the same mistake as the poor lady, and suspect her wrongfully."

"No, not that. But naturally she wished the man whom she could trust as a husband to be wholly cognisant of events in which already he had participated slightly."

"She was right. I like her all the better for it. But, tell me, is there any necessity for that wonderful document to be preserved?"

"Not the slightest. It has served its long use."

"Then put it in the fire."

Bruce did not hesitate a moment to comply with the wish. The flames devoured the record with avidity, and the two men watched the manuscript crumbling in nothingness. Then Corbett said:

"I must be off to the Savoy."

"Good-by, old chap," said Bruce. "And good luck to you, and I congratulate both Mrs. Hillmer and yourself."

(THE END.)

The Real Question

Father (impressively)—Suppose I should be taken away suddenly, what would become of you, my boy.

Irreverent Son—I'd stay here. The question is, what would become of you?

RELIABLE METHODS OF BEAUTY CULTURE

WHEN TOO FAT—Dissolve 4 ounces parmotine in 1½ pints pure witch hazel; when it cools take a tablespoonful three times a day. This is harmless and the most certain way by which to reduce weight without dieting or incurring wrinkles. Absolutely no weight is withheld, the fat melts away from and the skin free from wrinkles or flabbiness.

WHEN EYEBROWS ARE THIN—Rubbing a little petrolin on eyebrows with finger-end makes them grow thick and silky. For scanty lashes, apply petrolin at lash-roots with thumb and forefinger and in a short time they will come to long and curly. Be careful not to get petrolin in the eyes when using it.

FOR A YOUTH-TONED SKIN—To 4 parts witch hazel add 1 part water; add 4 ounces spurmax, then 2 teaspoonfuls peroxide and stir well. You have a fine lotion very superior to powder. This is excellent to banish sallowness, sunburn and fine lines, and will give to the complexion that youthful and velvety smoothness so noticeable in healthy maidenhood. The spurmax lotion prevents tan, sunburn, freckles and skin-roughness, and cannot be detected when on. Using this harmless lotion does away with dull powdered, lifeless look.

FOR GLOSSY, FLUFFY HAIR—The hair can be beautifully lustrous and fluffy during the most trying days of summer by occasional shampoos with plain cantharox, a teaspoonful of which dissolved in a cup hot water is ample for a thorough cleansing. Cantharox shampoos invigorate the scalp and hair-roots and restore faded, "stringy" hair give a richness of color and silky fluff that always marks the head of perfect hair. The regular use of cantharox will induce a healthy growth, thick and long.

Milady's Toilet Table

By Mme. D'MILLE

"A neglected complexion makes a woman look older than she is. The easiest way to preserve or restore a girlish complexion is to lightly massage face, neck and arms with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in a half-pint witch hazel. This prevents sunburn, tan and freckles, and keeps the skin soft, satiny and altogether lovely.

"Men always will admire beautiful hair. Washing the head leaves the hair dull and lifeless. Dry shampooing removes dust, dirt and dandruff and leaves the scalp clean, cool and refreshed. Mix four ounces of powdered orris root with an original package of therox; sprinkle a little on the head, brush thoroughly through the hair—and your shampoo is done—your hair light, beautifully lustrous and easy to do up.

"A simple way has been found to remove superfluous hair from the face or forearms. Make a paste by mixing powdered delatone and water to spreading consistency. After one or two minutes, then remove and wash the skin.

"Short, thin eyelashes can be made to grow long, thick and silky if mascine is applied to the roots with thumb and forefinger, and brushing gives them a curl. The eyebrows can be beautified in the same manner and brushing with mycola."

PART I.—(Continued).

WHERE was he? The man who had carried him off was the youngest in the group. What had he wanted of George? Those who remained showed no interest in the matter. They had enough to say among themselves. But I was interested—naturally so, and, in my uneasiness, glanced restlessly from the window, the shade of which was up. The outlook was a very peaceful one.

This room faced a side street, and, as my eyes fell upon the whitened pavements, I received an answer to one, and that the most anxious, of my queries.

This was the street into which we had turned, in the wake of the hapless stranger they were trying at this moment to identify with Brotherson. George had evidently been asked to point out the exact spot where the man had stopped, for I could see from my vantage point two figures bending near the curb and even pawing at the snow which lay there. It gave me a slight turn when one of them—I do not think it was George—began to run his hands together in much the way the unknown gentleman had done, and, in my excitement, I probably uttered some sort of an ejaculation, for I was suddenly conscious of a silence in the room, and when I turned saw all the men about me looking my way.

"I attempted to smile, but instead, stammered painfully, as I raised my hand and pointed down at the street.

A Painful Sight

"They are imitating the man," I cried; "my husband and—and the person he went out with. It looked dreadful to me! I—I—is all."

One of the gentlemen immediately said some kind words to me, and another smiled in a very encouraging way. But their attention was soon diverted, and so was mine by the entrance of a man in semi-uniform, who was immediately addressed as Clausen.

I knew his face. He was one of the doorkeepers; the oldest employe about the hotel, and the one best liked. I had often exchanged words with him myself.

"Mr. Slater at once put his question:

"Has Mr. Brotherson passed your door at any time tonight?"

"Mr. Brotherson? I don't remember really I don't," was the unexpected reply. "It's not often I forget. But so many people came rushing in during those few minutes, and all so excited"——

"Before the excitement, Clausen. A little while before, possibly just before."

"Oh, now I recall him! Mr. Brotherson went out of my door not many minutes before the cry upstairs. I forgot because I had stepped back from the door to hold a lady a muff she had dropped, and it was at that minute he went out. I just got a glimpse of his back as he passed into the street."

"But you are sure of that back?"

"I don't know another like it, when he wears that big coat of his. But Jim can tell you, sir. He was in the cafe up to that minute, and that's where Mr. Brotherson usually goes first."

"Very well; send up Jim. Tell him I have some orders to give him."

The old man bowed and went out.

Who He Was

Meanwhile, Mr. Slater had exchanged some words with the two officials, and now approached me with an expression of extreme consideration. They were about to excuse me from further participation in this informal inquiry. This I saw before he spoke. Of course they were right. But I should greatly have preferred to stay where I was till George came back.

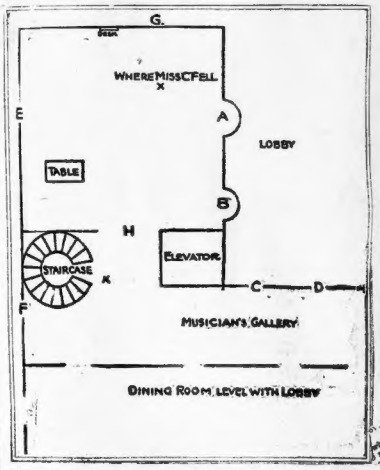
However, I met him for an instant in the hall before I took the elevator, and later I heard in a roundabout way what Jim and some others about the house had to say about Mr. Brotherson.

He was an habitue of the hotel, to the extent of dining once or twice a week in the cafe, and smoking, afterward, in the public lobby. When he was in the mood for talk, he would draw an ever-enlarging group about him, but at other times he would be seen sitting quite alone and morosely indifferent to all who approached him. There was no mystery about his business. He was an inventor, with one or two valuable patents already on the market. But this was not his only interest. He was an all-round sort of man, moody but brilliant in many ways—a character which at once attracted and repelled, odd in that he seemed to set his

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

GEORGE ANDERSON, a young business man, and his wife are passing the entrance to the Hotel Cremont, when they see a powerfully built man emerge and stoop down over the gutter. He, they notice, is washing his hands in the snow. The man disappears. A moment later they hear that Edith Challoner, daughter of Moses Challoner, a millionaire, has been murdered in the hotel. They go inside. Mrs. Anderson faints. Slater, the hotel manager, and Anderson revive her. Anderson then goes to get the details. Mrs. Anderson wonders if the stranger whom they noticed in the street had anything to do with the murder. An investigation is immediately started. The Andersons tell their story to Slater and Detective Sweetwater. Slater declares he recognizes the description of the mysterious stranger as being that of a man named Brotherson. Clausen, door attendant of the hotel, is sent for. Meanwhile the detectives takes Anderson to the street. Mrs. Anderson, still suffering from shock, misses her husband and becomes agitated.

Now Go On With the Story



le srore by his good looks, yet was most careful to dress himself in a way to show them to advantage. If he had means beyond the ordinary no one knew it, nor could any man say that he had not. On all personal matters he was very close-mouthed, though he would talk about other men's riches in a way to show that he cherished some very extreme views.

This was all which could be learned about him off-hand, and at so late an hour. I was greatly interested, of course, and had plenty to think of till I saw George again and learned the result of the latest investigations.

Miss Challoner had been shot, not stabbed. No other deduction was possible from such facts as were now known, though the physicians had not yet handed in their report, or even intimated what that report would be. No assailant could have approached or left her without attracting the notice of some one if not all of the persons seated at a table in the same room. She could only have been reached by a bullet sent from a point near the head of a small winding staircase connecting the mezzanine floor with a coat room adjacent to the front door. This has already been insisted on, as you will remember, and if you will glance at the diagram which George hastily scratched for me, you will see why.

A, B, as well as C D, are half circular openings into the office lobby. E F are wondows opening upon Broadway, and G the party wall, necessarily unbroken by window, door or any other opening. It follows then that the only possible means of approach to this room lies through the archway H or from the elevator door. But the elevator made no stop at the mezzanine on or near the time of the attack upon same room. She could only have been Miss Challoner; nor did any one leave the table or pass by it in either direction till after the alarm given by her fall.

Famous Professor of Chemistry Offers Free, Secret How to Have Strong, Healthy, Beautiful Eyes.

Many With Weak Eyes Can Throw Away Their Glasses.

EYELASHES and EYEBROWS Can Also Be Made Beautiful.

Without beautiful eyes, no one is really beautiful, while even a homely face may become attractive if eyes that please or appear forceful.

Without strong eyes the can enjoy life to the utmost. Those whose eyes are weak and who have to wear glasses are really handicapped in life's race.

Through the wonderful discovery and free advice of the famous Professor of Chemistry, whose name and address we give below, any person, no matter how weak or near-sighted he or she may be, can soon have eyes that have the power to influence others—eyes that operate all winter.

Better still, Prof. Smith's scientific discovery enables many to throw away their glasses entirely and gain their vision straight without glasses. Many can read fine print after using it a few days.

His secret will also enable you to restore lashes and brows that have disappeared from any cause, which are to a beautiful eye what a fine setting is to a brilliant diamond.

In addition, this remarkable discovery makes dull, lifeless eyes bright, sparkling and beautiful in a few days, and will also remove all redness, blotches, "bloodshot" and yellow spots. If you wish to make your eyes bright, healthy and beautiful in a few days, enclosing 2 cents in stamps for postage, state whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss, and address Prof. Smith, 1117 Providence, R. TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

Prices Ease Off in a Stagnant Stock Market

By W. H. ROSS.

STATE STREET, July 24.—Midday. There was the same stagnation in the Boston market this morning which characterized it yesterday, more copper issues giving fractionally lower and the buying demand of a contracted nature.

Outside of the copper list Boston & Albany was quoted 2 points lower and New England Telephone was up one. Tuolumne and Butte & Superior were a couple of coppers to sell higher.

It is reiterated that the Butte & Superior differences with Senator Clark over the Elm Orlu Company's contentions have been adjusted. It is supposed that the visit to Butte of Vice-President MacKenzie of Butte & Superior is in connection with the proposed acquisition of new properties.

When J. Pierpont Morgan arrived at New York today he would not discuss either the political or financial situation nor confirm nor deny he had sold while in Europe he was "disgusted with politics in this country." He left town away from New York since December 20 last.

Spelter is selling today at 7.80 cents per pound, New York delivery, and this is a record high price.

Big Market Dull and Lower.

The New York market continues dull and the price tendency this morning was downward. There was very little demand for stocks at the start. Leading railroads and industrials were a little lower. The biggest declines was suffered by National Biscuit, which went down six points. General Electric was a stock to open higher and maintain its gain in early trading.

Erie common, which has been a strong feature in the recent trading, reflected some liquidation in the early transactions, receding ¾ to 35¾. Utah Copper on two transactions fell ¾, to 61¾. Some of the other price changes were: Steel common up ⅛, Amalgamated off ¼, Smelting up ⅛, Atchison up ⅛, Union Pacific off ⅛, Southern Pacific up ⅛.

Part of the initial declines were later recovered and at the end of the first quarter of an hour of trading some leading stocks were being quoted at generally the same prices at which they closed yesterday.

The Curb market opened steady.

In the London market American stocks ruled quiet and firm, with Steel issues slightly easier. In the copper metal market spot and futures each opened 15s. lower, and that market was weak.

Copper Metal Situation.

Right on heels of the report that European consumers have renewed inquiries for copper in this country the quotations in the standard warrant market in London for spot and futures contain three-quarters of a pound lower today.

Regarding European demand for the metal, it is said to be mostly for October shipments. Small quantities of electrolytic are said to be wanted for prompt delivery, but the bulk of the business is for delivery in September or October. According to most recent statements from subscribers situated in several Western States that since Canada has put the embargo on copper ore shipments, he is in favor of repealing the reciprocity act, the Senate Committee on Finance, through Chairman Simmons, has reported a bill repealing the embargo against ore.

The Senate committee also has charge of the postoffice appropriations, reports that railroads should be paid $2,000,000 more for carrying the mails than was allowed by the House Committee.

Steel corporation unfilled tonnage for current month $2 a ton. Consumers are said to be specifying for their full requirements of plates and structural material. It is said that the unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation for the month of July will be 1,000,000 tons, what it was at the end of June, as new orders and production have been about equal.

It is reported from Denver that the Metal trust, which controls the output of the Metal mine, will increase its output to about twelve miles of 50,000 tons, held by Eastern bankers. One directory from that city says that the Union Pacific will build for the Metal mine. At the Harriman road's New York office this is denied. The latest official statement is to the effect that Newman Erb may obtain control of the road.

The latest agricultural difficulty reported from the West is the scarcity of corn, over shortage, lack of seed, and consequent failure. Harvesting is beginning three weeks earlier than usual.

WILL SOCIETY DANCE 'EM?

An English artist suggests some startling new terpsichorean effects which make the "Bunny Hug" and the "Turkey Trot" seem tame by comparison.

FIND PLOT IN RUSSIA AGAINST JAP PRINCE

VIENNA, July 24.—A plot to assassinate Prince Katsura, former Premier of Japan, has been discovered by the police of St. Petersburg, where the statesman is now visiting on a diplomatic mission, according to a dispatch from the Russian capital today. The plot is said to have been hatched by Koreans. A special guard has been established by the Chief of Police to protect the Prince. He sails for Tokio on Saturday. The ex-Premier has been recalled by the critical illness of the Emperor of Japan.

PROGRESSIVES MAKE "ROLLER" CHARGES

RENO, Nev., July 24.—In a State convention of the Progressive party, characterized by frequent charges that the "steam roller" was in use, three delegates and three alternates were chosen to attend the convention in Chicago.

Cosmopolitan Magazine 6% Gold Bonds

Now Open for Subscription in Denominations of $500 and $1,000 at Par

These bonds are issued by the International Magazine Company, which owns and publishes the Cosmopolitan Magazine, Motor and Motor Boating, the three leading publications in their lines, on which this Million Dollar Bond Issue is a first lien.

These 6% gold bonds are also guaranteed by William R. Hearst, and are protected by Twenty Million Dollars of assets.

The earnings of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, Motor and Motor Boating last year on which taxes were paid to the United States Government, were over five times the annual interest on this bond issue.

The Cosmopolitan reserves the right, however, to reject any or all subscriptions.

These bonds offer as safe and solid an investment as can be found in the United States and at the same time pay 6% interest.

PINES RIVERBANK

House and Bungalow Lots $150 to $350. $25 Down, $5 a Month

PINES RIVERBANK IS LOCATED in the most desirable part of REVERE, bordering the cities of MALDEN, CHELSEA and LYNN, affording transportation facilities in all directions at only a few minutes in the day.

As the LOTS are LARGE, ranging from 4,000 to 8,000 square feet, one does not have to buy more than three lots which is plenty for a home, and each lot fronts on a paved street.

TO BOSTON 10 MINUTES (When the New Boston and Revere Beach Boulevard is completed) TO LYNN 5 MINUTES

The large manufacturing industries in the Lynn district are located in Revere and in close proximity to "Pines Riverbank"—such as will demand hundreds and thousands of homes, assuring the purchaser of a lot from a profit within the limit.

To our customers we make this statement:

We started in 1909 with Court Park, Winthrop, where we sold 176 lots in 24 hours, aggregating $140,000, and where the purchasers have averaged a profit of $500 upon every $25 invested; in Squire's Lakeside Terrace and Squire's Garden, Arlington, where we have sold $250,000 worth, nearly every lot to residents of Arlington, or Cambridge, and Somerville, which are but a few minutes away. Now we offer in Revere Pines, where we have purchased an investment or home proposition, the Pines Riverbank Land is in the same class as above, and we recommend it highly.

To the Elevated Directors

Kindly AND WISELY Say to Your General Bancroft That American Citizens Employed by a Public Service Corporation DO Have the Right to Organize—And So, Mr. Directors, in This QUEEREST OF ALL QUEER POLITICAL YEARS, Spare the People and the Industries of This Commonwealth a SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE.

It appears to the AMERICAN that the time has come when the directors of the Boston Elevated Railway—Mr. Ayer, Mr. Winsor, Mr. Thayer AND THE OTHERS—should quietly take the helm of that great public service enterprise and say to General William A. Bancroft, their president, that he CANNOT RUN THEIR PROPERTY MUCH LONGER IF HE IS GOING TO LIVE IN THE PAST.

The employes of the Boston Elevated Railway HAVE THE RIGHT of American citizens to organize as such employes. When General Bancroft took the attitude that these American citizens did not have that right, and began to order the discharge of such EMPLOYES as were prominent in the work of organizing, he took a stand that few employers have taken SUCCESSFULLY since along about 1884. In which respect General William A. Bancroft reminds us of Nelson W. Aldrich, Jacob H. Gallinger and others too numerous to mention.

The strike of the Elevated Railway's carmen has already cost the railway company a sum which, were the public to know all, would STAGGER THIS COMMUNITY. Fewer cars have been running, patronage has fallen off, THIEVES have been in charge of many of the bellropes.

Much greater, in the long run, however, will be the loss in prestige, in GOOD WILL.

And all because one man, William A. Bancroft, with the spoken or implied support of his directors, says IN 1912 that the carmen must choose between organization and employment!

The Boston AMERICAN, which urged as early as June 4 that the Elevated and its employes GET TOGETHER as reasonable men, and which EIGHT DAYS LATER called for a settlement of the strike BY ARBITRATION, today advises the directors of the Boston Elevated Railway Company to come to the front and end existing intolerable conditions by ONE WORD TO WILLIAM A. BANCROFT.

PUT THE STRIKING CARMEN BACK ON THEIR CARS. Meet the officials of their union. Deal with them as fellow-citizens. Which, we need not add, does not mean, NECESSARILY, that whatever the union wants to have it ought to have.

There is talk now of a SPECIAL SESSION OF THE LEGISLATURE.

For what purpose?

TO ENACT LAWS THAT WILL CARRY OUT THE RECOMMENDATIONS CONTAINED IN THE REPORT OF THE STATE BOARD OF CONCILIATION AND ARBITRATION.

We do not need to call the attention of men like Robert Winsor, E. V. R. Thayer, F. E. Peabody, George Peabody Gardner, and the other directors of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, to the fact that this is about the queerest of all queer political years. THESE DIRECTORS KNOW THAT, WITHOUT OUR TELLING THEM OF IT.

Nor is there any necessity to point out that POLITICS is bound to cut SOME figure in the matter of the strike on the Elevated, IF IT IS NOT DOING SO ALREADY.

If the Massachusetts Legislature is called together in special session at this time, IT MAY GO MUCH FURTHER than the enactment of laws that will carry out the recommendations of the State Board. Whatever it does, it is quite certain to make the directors of the Elevated regret the stiff-necked attitude of their railway president and the support they have given him IN THAT ATTITUDE.

General Bancroft and the Greater Boston public parted company the day General Bancroft said that his employes must not have an organization—meaning a labor union—and at the same time patted on the heads those loyal employes who had banded together in an organization designed and blessed by General Bancroft.

The Boston Elevated Railway gets everything for nothing from this community. It cannot prosper, AS ALL OF US WANT IT TO PROSPER, without the good will of Greater Boston.

And it cannot win back the good will it has lost until the striking carmen are back on their cars, their right to organize FULLY ADMITTED BY EVERYBODY.

The AMERICAN earnestly hopes that the directors of the Elevated Railway Company—ALL OF THEM—may come back to town and stay here long enough to settle this strike without further delay.

At all events spare us—IN THIS YEAR OF ALL YEARS—a special session of the Massachusetts Legislature.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

CIVIC RIGHTEOUSNESS AND GOOD GOVERNMENT

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Your public spiritedness and broad liberality in having Governor Russell—and you publish—his brilliant and magnanimous editorial, entitled "The Forgotten Man," in Sunday's AMERICAN, is the greatest act yet done by any newspaper for the cause of civic righteousness and good government. Yours truly,

W. G. McHARDY.

PRAISE FOR ATTITUDE IN RUSSELL WILL CASE

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—On all sides I hear praise for the stand you have taken in the editorial in the AMERICAN in respect to the Russell case. It is to be sincerely hoped you will keep the good work up until District Attorney Higgins will allow this remarkable case to go to the Grand Jury.

G. F. C.

KEEP RELIGION OUT OF POLITICS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Just a line to congratulate you on the editorial in the AMERICAN entitled "Why Not Leave Religion Out of Politics?"

An epitome of your utterances, so true, should be posted in every assembly hall of every political club throughout the entire country, for it should be potent to every sane man that, at this age a man's religious belief is not and should not be an impediment to his attaining even the highest position the people can confer upon a qualified citizen.

Permit me to say that I read your editorials daily, with much pleasure and profit, and that in point of truefulness, fairness, diction and intrepidity I consider them second to none.

Trusting you may be always animated with the same spirit of wisdom and fair play to direct the public mind, I am

J. H. WILSON.

Lifting the Lid in New York

Desperate Desmond—and Three Heroes

1—DESMOND'S PLAN. Desmond Prohibition, needing more shade in his "dry" country, sets off to chop down our heroes.

2—THE FLAG OF TRUCE. Heroes Taft, Wilson and Roosevelt are all in need of money. So they suspend hostilities with Prohib while they plan a circus to raise the coin.

3—THE DOUBLE CROSS. Hero Roosevelt, being a practical man, sells the crowd tickets for his own circus in Chicago.

4—EMPTY CHAIRS. Desperate Desmond Prohibition and our three heroes wait in the circus tent, but no spectators assemble to see the Beautiful Rosamond Election vault from steed to steed.

5—EXPOSED. Two anxious purchasers of tickets to the Chicago affair have heard that the B. Moose may not appear there and come to inquire, thus giving away Hero Roosevelt's plot.

6—THE WRANGLE. While Heroes Wilson and Taft are arguing with Hero Roosevelt, Desperate Prohib skiddoos with Rosamond. Full pictures of the fight tomorrow.

The Important Business of Marriage and How Divorce Might Be Avoided

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

MARRIAGE is the most important business in the world.

No large corporation, with offices in every city in the land, means so much to the human race as one happy, clean, loving home, where there is one standard of morals for husband and wife, and where there are mutual affection, mutual trust and confidence, and a constant effort to be reasonable, agreeable, sensible and considerate. Such a home is HEAVEN.

"But Heaven is not reached by a single bound;

"We mount to the summit round by round."

However two people love when they marry, domestic happiness must, to continue, be gained by daily practice of the old fashioned virtues. Because the lover bridegroom calls his wife an angel she must not imagine she has nothing to do to retain her perfection in his eyes. Instead she must feel a great responsibility put upon her, to produce a materialization of his ideal.

Husband Must Use Common Sense to Keep Wife's Love

The husband who has won his prize must not imagine he can keep the respect and loyalty and love of his wife without using self-control and common sense reasonably.

Why do men and women ignore these plain facts?

Why do they understand that every object in life which they set forth to seek must be continually toiled for and made a subject of study and patient effort, and yet ignore all these rules when they set forth to attain domestic happiness?

And without that, what is life worth?

We all deplore the prevalency of divorce in the land.

Divorce is so common that it is vulgar.

It is no longer tragic.

Yet there are situations which are so distressing one is amazed at the spiritual courage of the husband or the wife who endures a continuance of domestic life.

There is a man who works every alternate night.

On the night when he does not work, he never appears at his home until 2 or 3 in the morning.

And then he refuses to state where he has been.

There is a daughter of sixteen; and she is curious to know why her father is away from his home.

Still Loves Her Husband, Despite His Disloyalty

There are neighbors who hear him return; and the unhappy wife must not only suffer with loneliness and sorrow, but she must bear the humiliation of gossip and scandal.

She has been married eighteen years; and she has no way of taking care of herself and her family.

Besides she married for love, and the flame burns still in her heart despite the husband's selfishness and disloyalty.

What possible pleasure or happiness can a man find in his dissipation or his gambling or his amours which can compensate him for the loss of his self-respect and the knowledge that he has spoiled the life of the woman he chose for his life companion; the keeper of his home and the mother of his child?

Married life can be made so beautiful with the humblest surroundings and in the midst of the hardest toil if the two contracting parties will hold the ideal of a perfect partnership, which is to result in complete success just as two men in business do.

When anything causes a difference of opinion, the two business associates always sit down and quietly talk the matter over.

Each has his own special duties and obligations to make the partnership a success; and if one neglects or shirks his responsibilities the other has a right to complain.

Precisely the same method should be used in the marriage business. This man under discussion promised to love, support and cherish the woman he married, and he is breaking his obligations by neglecting her and making her unhappy by his questionable habits.

At the same time it is possible that the wife has not made an attractive home for the husband.

She may be a nagging woman; she may be a careless housekeeper.

She may have allowed herself to grow frowsy and unnecessarily old and uninteresting, and she may think of nothing better to talk about when her husband is at home than her ailments, aches and pains.

Regard Marriage as a Business to Avoid Divorce

The mere fact of a marriage tie does not keep a man contented and happy in the companionship of a woman of this description.

But instead of rushing away from her to seek distraction elsewhere, the masculine member of the marriage business concern should talk with the woman partner and tell her just where she is failing, and ask her to try and keep up her part of the contract.

The wife should do the same when the male partner begins to be lax in his obligations. Many divorces could be avoided if husbands and wives regarded marriage as an important business affair.
